MEASURE THROWN

Ten Per Cent Slash From Educational Funds Approved in House

By The Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—The senate late today passed the $46,602,500 social security appropriations bill after cutting $2,000,000 from direct relief and boosting state old age pension funds by that amount, so as to get an added $2,000,000 from the federal government.

Totals of the bill include $27,875,000 from state and $18,727,500 in federal funds.

Relief was slashed from $10,000,000 to $8,000,000, and state old age assistance funds boosted from $15,000,000 to $17,000,000. The latter funds are matched dollar for dollar by the federal government, while relief funds are not.

The house—holding a "skeleton" session with half a dozen members present—immediately rejected senate changes in the bill, throwing it into a conference committee.

Other senate amendments to the measure—largest appropriation bill ever introduced in the Missouri legislature—left its total $1,777,500 greater than the $44,825,000 approved by the house. Most of the increase was from federal funds.

During the afternoon both senate and house accepted a conference committee report on the "civil list" appropriations bill, sending it to the governor, and the senate passed the fund bill for educational institutions—carrying $8,684,092 in general revenue and $798,500 in funds for 1937-38.

The educational bill joined the list of those in conference, which will be acted on when senate and house reconvene Monday. Committees will work all day tomorrow adjusting differences.

Chairman J. S. Rollins of the senate appropriations committee supported the $2,000,000 cut in relief funds with the statement the new millions for old age assistance were expected materially to reduce relief costs, and that "times are better."

He said the $17,000,000 in state old age funds, matched by a like amount from federal sources, would provide pensions of $20 a month for 70,000 aged.

Items Carried In Bill

As the big social security bill left the senate, it carried the following items:

$24,000,000 for old age assistance payments, including $17,000,000 in state and $7,000,000 in federal funds.

$8,000,000 from state funds for direct relief.

$2,212,500 for administration of the Casey social security bill, including $1,225,000 in state funds, and $887,500 in federal funds.

$90,000 in federal funds for child welfare services, to be operated under the new social security commission.

$2,250,000 for aid to dependent children, including $1,500,000 in state and $750,000 in federal funds.

$50,000 covering a state flood relief appropriation approved earlier.

Most of the state's educational institutions were cut a flat 10 per cent from the house bill.

Totals as the senate approved the bill included:

University of Missouri, $3,619,155.

Springfield Teachers College, $598,500.

Cape Girardeau Teachers College, $528,210.

Maryville Teachers College, $594,300.

Kirkville Teachers College, $662,164.

Warrensburg Teachers College, $598,500.

Missouri School of Mines at Rolla, $571,000.

School for the Deaf at Fulton, $621,000.

Lincoln (Negro) University, Jefferson City, $486,000.

Missouri School for the Blind, St. Louis, $165,000.

Legislators Propose More Pay
JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—(P)—With the legislature's longest session nearing its end, the senate took action today toward submitting a request for a pay increase of over 100 per cent for legislators, to voters at the 1938 general election.

As expected, the proposed constitutional amendment would call for $10 a day for 120 days of a regular session, and $3 a day thereafter, instead of $5 a day for 70 days and "dollar days" after that.

For a revision session, now limited to 120 days at $5 a day, the proposed change would be $10 a day for 50 days, and $3 after that.

CONGRESS MAY BE IN SESSION TO LATE SUMMER

President Anxious For Action On Proposal
To Revamp Court

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 5.—House chiefs looked over the legislative slate with President Roosevelt today and returned to the capitol with predictions that congress probably would be in session until late summer.

Speaker Bankhead and House Majority Leader Rayburn described the President as anxious for congress to act before adjournment on revamping the supreme court, reorganizing governmental agencies, setting wage and hour standards, planning conservation of water, soil and power resources, aiding farm tenants, building low cost dwellings, closing loopholes used by tax dodgers, and extending nuisance taxes.

"Mr. Roosevelt," Bankhead said, "didn't insist on anything being passed but urged that we try to get all these matters through as soon as possible."

Planning and conservation legislation was the only addition today to a program disclosed by Senate Majority Leader Robinson after a conference at the White House Thursday night.

Congressional leaders said they looked for no more major suggestions for legislation this session.

The Roosevelt proposal to add five justices to the supreme court unless incumbents past 70 retire remained the big hurdle in the path of adjournment. Bankhead and Rayburn said they discussed it only generally at the White House.

Bankhead said the house would take no action on it until it appeared an agreement had been reached in the senate. He said there might be some "development" in the other branch "in the next week" but that was "just a guess."

Administration leaders in the senate are hinting compromise, but some of the bill's foes are threatening to filibuster against any increase whatever in the tribunal's membership.

The house leadership decided to seek action on the two tax features of the legislative program next week.

The situation with regard to the rest of the program, as house leaders see it, is this:

1. Consolidation and reorganization of government agencies. Senator Robinson (D-Ark.) is working on a new bill which may help to compose some congressional differences.

2. Farm tenancy. Legislation probably will provide for a $10,000,000 experimental system the first year and authorize $25,000,000 the second year and $50,000,000 for ten years thereafter.

3. Low cost housing. The treasury and sponsors of legislation are in dispute over financing provisions. A smaller program than that proposed by Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) is likely.

4. Wages and hours. A measure to fix minimum wages, maximum hours for interstate industries probably will be enacted before the end of the session. The senate and house labor committees are holding joint hearings on it now.

5. Conservation and power authorities. Bankhead said "there may be such a row on that nothing will get through."

Filibuster Threat
WASHINGTON, June 5.—Senate foes of the Roosevelt court bill threatened bluntly today to filibuster to the point of exhaustion against any compromise increasing the size of the supreme court.

This was their reaction to negotiations begun by administration men in an effort to obtain a vote on a compromise bill this summer.

Denouncing the move as "pure face saving," Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) said "I will stand in the senate until I drop against any compromise."

Senator Burke (D-Neb.), echoing his views, told newspapermen 40 court bill foes were ready to filibuster any compromise that would increase the membership of the high court. But he and others said a filibuster would not be necessary.

SWOC SAYS PICKET LINES BE 'UNBROKEN'

Negotiations of Gov. M.
L. Davey to End The Strike "Stalemated"

By The Associated Press.
YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 5.—Republic Steel Corp. fought in two courts today to free its plants from the grip of strikers, and the Steel Workers Organizing Committee countered with a lawsuit "pickets will no longer permit their lines to be broken, cost what it may."

"Sinister and bloody things are in the offing in Youngstown," declared the SWOC's Chairman Philip Murray as Republic obtained a court order directing pickets to permit access to its Warren and Niles plants and to give up "clubs x x x and other weapons."

In Chicago, scene of the strike fighting fatal to seven men last Sunday, Mayor Edward J. Kelly directed Republic to remove by Monday night the men encamped in its plant there. He said building and health regulations were being violated.

Republic Corporation offices in Cleveland sent another telegram to Washington postoffice officials over the name of Board Chairman Tom Girdler demanding to know if food packages, rejected at Warren and Niles, O., postoffices, were not considered "normal mail matter sent throughout the United States every day through the mails."

Drive Pickets Off Bridge
These developments came a few hours after police and sheriff's deputies, bearing rifles and tear gas, drove several hundred pickets from a bridge adjoining a Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. plant here.

The pickets had gathered when a locomotive ran a box car of food quickly into the company's grounds. "I shall use every effort available to protect lives and property," Sheriff Ralph E. Elser declared even as a group of men were using torches to cut the spur tracks over which the car had been moved.

"We feel that this action on the part of Sheriff Elser is solely that of strike-breaking," was the reply of John Mayo, SWOC director here.

"The pickets will no longer permit their lines to be broken, cost what it may," he advised Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio, whose negotiations to end the strike apparently were stalemated.

Presses Its Campaign
The SWOC pressed forward its campaign to "shut off the source of supply" by calling out iron miners in Minnesota and Michigan. Workers at two plants were idle because P. public was unable to unload shipments at its mills. Two Maryland manufacturing plants closed down because of their inability to obtain steel.

With the strike in its 11th day, Republic, Sheet and Tube and the Inland Steel Co., showed no signs of retreat from their stand that signing of a contract with the SWOC would lead to "a closed shop and the checkoff." Nor did the union relinquish its insistence that signed contracts were necessary to send 73,000 men, idle in seven states, back to work.

The order issued by Judge Lynn B. Griffith of the state common pleas court at nearby Warren, directed pickets and union leaders to refrain "from interfering with the free access of employees" and their "free return to their homes."

The alternative writ ordered the defendants to comply or show cause next Thursday why an injunction should not be issued. Republic had sought an immediate temporary injunction. Judge Griffith explained violation of today's order would constitute contempt of court.

In another court Republic asked dismissal of a temporary injunction restraining the company—third largest steel producer—from making expenditures "for the purpose of interfering with the free unionization of employees." Republic's counsel contended the suit was filed by a C. I. O. organizer who recently had obtained 10 shares of the company's stock.

DUKE LIVES IN GRANDER STYLE
IN OLD CASTLE

Wally In House Dress
Has Knickknacks Stored In Attic

By The Associated Press.
NOETSCH, Austria, June 5.—The Duke of Windsor and his bride today found the peace and privacy for which he asked when they were married Thursday.

They settled down to domestic life in old Wasserleoburg Castle in Southern Austria's Dobratsch mountains.

There were no visitors. Birds sang in the nearby woods. Golden sunshine lay over the square, ancient castle. Southward across the valley of the Gail river, snow glistened on the heights of the Julian Alps and feathery clouds hung to the peaks.

It was perhaps the greatest peace the former British king had ever found.

The Duchess, the former Wallis Warfield of Baltimore, bustled about the big rooms of the castle in a figured housedress. She was in search of the many old dust-gathering knickknacks and ornaments with which the building was littered.

Up to the attic they went, to be stored away—deer horns, elephant tusks, a hippopotamus and head and style over the little community on the hill.

For the moment, at least, she left on the walls the large portraits of the "Lady Bluebird" and her six husbands, who lived in the castle in the 16th century.

Legend has it the ghosts of the six come back to haunt the castle, for the wife is supposed to have killed them, one after another, soon after marriage. Their bones are buried beneath the castle.

The Duke presided in baronial style over the little community on the estate. His staff included two Scottish Yard detectives, his quarry, Austrian and English maids, the Duke's Austrian chef and other attendants who remained when the owner, the German Count Muenster, turned the Chateau over to the couple.

The Duke is living in a grander style than on his two previous stays in Austria, indicating, perhaps, that he has settled financial questions and is returning to the comforts to which he was accustomed as Prince of Wales and King of England.

By The Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, June 5.—Harry L. Jacobs said tonight the U. S. circuit court of appeals at St. Paul will be asked to take jurisdiction in an attempt to compel Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis to disqualify himself from presiding in 10 pending vote fraud conspiracy trials.

Jacobs, a defense attorney in the earlier vote fraud cases, said William G. Boatright, chief of defense counsel in the first fraud trial, will ask the court Monday for permission to file an application for a writ of mandamus, compelling Judge Otis to step aside. Judge Otis has refused defense requests that he disqualify himself.

Maurice M. Milligan, U. S. district attorney, assigned two assistants, Sam C. Blair and Thomas C. Sostolow, to go to St. Paul and argue against issuance of a mandamus writ.

Thousands of Dollars
Worth of Merchandise
On Loading Docks

By The Associated Press.
OMAHA, Neb., June 5.—Thousands of dollars worth of merchandise, consigned to points throughout the middle west, lay on loading docks or in cold storage here tonight, tied up by a city-wide strike of drivers, helpers and dock hands.

The strike also has partially paralyzed local trucking.

Officials of the union to which the strikers belong, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, declared a general strike of truckers within the city which would prevent delivery of milk, groceries and other perishable commodities, would be attempted unless freight truck lines doing interstate business signed closed shop agreements by Monday.

Virgil Floyd, Joliet, Ill., an organizer for the union, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America, also announced tonight a concerted movement has begun in four states, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri, to stop movement of livestock in trucks until the strike is settled.

An effort will be made, he said, by placing pickets on all leading highways to the terminal markets at Omaha, Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo., to induce live stock truck drivers to refrain from working.

He estimated 6,000 men have joined in the walkout here since it began late last night.

Month-long negotiations between the union and trucking company representatives collapsed on the closed shop issue last night after the latter had agreed to two other demands, for wage increases of from 25 to 40 per cent and a 56-hour week.

The strike still was without sanction of the International Union tonight. Floyd said he had been unsuccessful in his attempts to reach his superiors.

FOUR DROWN AS A BOAT CAPSIZED

By The Associated Press.
LOVELAND, Colo., June 5.—Four men drowned this afternoon in Lone Tree Lake southwest of here when their motorboat capsized.

One man drowned, shore, called passing motorists and sent them for help.

He gave the names of the dead as:

Kenneth Willets, and Clifford Dunning, Jr., of Englewood, Colo.; Herschel B. Main and Clarence Edlin, of Denver.

The survivor, Maynard Harris of Englewood, was hysterical and chilled from the cold water of the lake, he was rushed to a hospital. Physicians refused to allow questioning of him.

All the dead were employees of the Gates Rubber Company in Denver.

Harris said while the party was speeding across the lake the boat overturned about 300 feet from shore.

He was the only member of the party able to swim through the icy water to safety. The others, he said, were pinned under the boat.

A fire department rescue crew from Loveland began grappling for the bodies. The first one recovered was that of Main.

Council Meets Monday

DAY ARMS DISPLAY

No Military Alliance Is Reported Between Italy and Germany

LONDON, June 5.—(P)—Further diplomatic wooing of Germany and Italy tonight was seen necessary before the two nations may be won back into the international patrol around Spain.

Both nations responded to the British proposal outlining a basis for their return to cooperation with the European "hands-off Spain" committee following their withdrawal Monday after warships of both were bombed by Spanish government warplanes.

It was reported unofficially both Rome and Berlin balked at the British suggestion the commanders of the international patrol should consult before any reprisals being taken in event of a patrol vessel being attacked.

British officials reserved comment but it was understood strong hopes were held here Reichschancellor Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini would fall into line after further negotiations.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden talked to Joachim Von Ribbentrop, German ambassador, and Italy's ambassador, Count Dino Grandi, before going home to study the situation over the week-end.

An official spokesman, commenting on Germany's note, which was not published, said "there is no reason to be disturbed about it."

Eden's Problem
Eden's problem was threefold:

1. To get Italy and Germany back into the "hands-off Spain" committee. They left it Monday, the day German warships shelled the Spanish government port of Almeria after German and Italian vessels had been bombed by Spanish government planes.

2. To satisfy Russia, which does not want the neutrality group to make any considerable concessions to Italy and Germany.

3. To keep France lined up with Britain, Germany and Italy.

France is anxious that Russia, her military ally, not be slighted or put on the opposite side of the fence.

France clung to her stand, disclosed yesterday, that all the naval nations represented in the "non-intervention committee" should join in the neutral patrol of Spain.

Eden's suggested safety zones for neutral ships near Spain and discussions among Germany, France, Italy and Britain if a vessel of any of them was attacked.

Balks At One Point
ROME, June 5.—(P)—Italy was understood tonight to have balked at one of the three points in the British proposal to draw Italy and Germany back into cooperation with the European "hands-off Spain" committee.

It was understood Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italy's foreign minister, expressed agreement on the first two points of the proposal—dealing with the establishment of extended zones of security for warships of the international patrol around Spain.

Superior Court Justice Arthur Chapman deferred sentence of the nine until later in the term. Each sought to arrange bail.

All were charged with conspiring to injure the business of the Charles Cushman Company, one of 19 factories involved in the drawn out strike.

The picnic, which furnishes a political forum, annually draws thousands of visitors.

URGES CONGRESS TO DEFER VOTE ON LABOR BILL

Senator Vandenberg Opposed to Immediate Enactment of Bill

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(P)—Senator Vandenberg (R. Mich.) opposed today immediate enactment of wage and hour legislation. He contended that industry needed a "breathing spell" rather than new "medicine."

In a radio address, Vandenberg accused the administration of "snap judgment" because it wants congress to enact minimum wage and maximum hour standards at this session.

He proposed instead that congress defer action until interim committees can prepare "seasoned, sustained and mature recommendations."

Senator Black (D. Ala.) co-author of the administration bill, announced that hearings on the measure may be completed by June 14. This prompted Vandenberg to say:

"The idea that such a program might be perfected by June 15 and rushed to quick conclusion—involving, as it ultimately does, the whole American economy—is a travesty upon prudence."

SELF VALUATION

Without ostentation man should value himself more highly than is his wont. It is one of man's faults that he undervalues himself, lacks confidence in his ability and admits to himself that he "can't." It is possible to know thyself, and for man to achieve something worthwhile in this world he must believe in himself for his full worth.

"Swell-headedness" is applied to persons who affect qualities unpossessed. One can be self-confident without being complacent and presuming. Man may know himself without letting others know he knows himself, that in truth, is the secret of success among men.

The higher a man's valuation of himself, the more his compassion and charity for his fellowmen. There is no consequent condescension in his manner because realizing a value in himself he unconsciously seeks out values in others.

One cannot expect the world to count him as of intrinsic worth if he himself does not recognize that worth. It becomes so much a part of our thought structure and our very personality that it plainly manifests itself in our words and acts. Unostentatious self-confidence is natural expression of personal evaluation. Vain boasting is a cloak to conceal natural weakness and failings. He who brags is painfully aware of his shortcomings; otherwise he would be conscious of nothing to boast about.

Self-confidence is the recognition of shortcomings overcome. Boasting is the recognition of shortcomings to be overcome.

CONFIDENCE

Successful progress needs a destination that is worth while and worth seeking after. Confidence in such a goal is the mainspring of ambition, and without it work is barren and good intention is wasted. If zeal for a final goal be linked to some clear vision of it, our labors are full of hope and our progress keeps pace with our growth and strength.

The instinct of humanity has insisted through the ages that this life has for its end and purpose a fuller, richer and more truly human life of eternal and joyful service. Confidence in this destination has upborne men and women, and also whole peoples and races, through toil and anxiety that would otherwise have led inevitably to black despair and bitter sense of injustice.

We have learned to fight back at misfortune, to deny the autocracy of unhappiness and to work hopefully for freedom of the body and spirit of man. Yet we have not escaped the necessity for an eternal fact to justify the labors, hazards and riddles of life. These challenge and attack us from within as once cruelty and injustice beset us from without.

Knowledge alone does not satisfy our spirits; we still seek for meaning and design in the complex pattern of which we are a part. Without some firm faith and confidence in a purpose to life we are still in the shadow of tragedy—the tragedy of finding our labors and ideals a mockery and our life itself a jest.

Our kick against human nature is it isn't always human.

You are not getting old until you hate to wear a new suit.

The influences that bring visiting relatives are (1) love, and (2) weather too hot for cooking.

IN PRAISE OF STRAWBERRIES

From the Cincinnati Inquirer.

Home-grown strawberries in the market! Of all our gastronomic felicities, none is greater. How Dr. Samuel Johnson, could he be with us, would repeat his famous saying that though God doubtless could make a better berry than the strawberry, yet He never did.

The strawberry has everything to commend it: delightful to the eye, vastly pleasing to the palate and good no matter how it is served. If the table is graced simply with a dish of strawberries, well and good; if it is strawberries and ice cream, wonderful, and if it is strawberry shortcake, it is a matter for family rejoicing.

In the old days, when the strawberry season was limited to the berries grown locally, it was such a notable event that the churches gave "strawberry festivals." Now, because of improved methods of transportation, we begin to get strawberries from Florida at Christmas. A little later, they come from the gulf coast and then from Alabama, and so as the spring advances we receive them from Tennessee and Kentucky.

And now, best and sweetest of all, we are having them from our own gardens. Dr. John Johnson was correct—the strawberry is unique and individual in its excellence.

HOW MUCH IN SHOP WINDOW?

From the New York Sun.

How many goods should be displayed to window shoppers? There are two schools of thought on the subject. Taking their extremes, one holds that the merest window suggestion of the wares within will exercise an effective lure; on behalf of the other it is contended that a multiplicity of articles, usually with price tags attached, will bring in trade.

Sales experience, doubtless, will enter into the advocacy—or defense—of either position. However, to the layman who may admire the artistry of the one or the industry evidenced by the other, it might seem that a reasonable mean between the two systems could offer a happy solution.

To be sure, if a man or woman is determined on going to a certain shop, window displays are of minor importance. But from the point of view of inviting the uninitiate, too decided a paucity of wares in the windows may cause the passer-by actually to pass by; and so may a sense of confusion, not to say, bewilderment, resulting from a casual glance at myriads of bargains.

Not too little, not too much—this is the desirable goal for window decorators to keep in mind. The first bit of advice, if followed, would prevent too strict a limiting of apparel; the second warns against excess.

BEAVERS BACK TO STATE

The beaver is returning to Missouri through the effort of the game department. Along in the 80s it was not unusual to see beaver hides with their flat tails in Springfield hide stores, the Leader and Press of that city says, but nothing of the kind has been witnessed for many years. In 1928, two pairs of beavers were purchased from Minnesota by the game and fish department and were released at Indian Trail state park, on a tributary of the Meramec river in Dent county. In May, 1929, it was made unlawful "to kill or capture, or to attempt to kill or capture, any beaver or to destroy or injure or to in any manner interfere with the dams or houses of such animals." Also in 1929, two females and a male from this introduced stock and the first year's progeny were captured and released near Montauk state park on the Current river, also in Dent county. In the spring of 1934, from these small beginnings, the beaver population along the Meramec and Current rivers, mostly in Dent county, numbered between 75 and 100 animals.

Every citizen should pay some taxes and the richer one is the more taxes he should pay.

Borrowing money is easy, apparently, but the paying back won't be as fast as the spending.

It is so easy to disagree that many individuals never learn the process of seeking to agree.

EDGAR WALLACE and ROBERT CURTIS

READ THIS FIRST.

Charles Stuckey, of a London law firm, reluctantly has agreed to a scheme to defraud the daughter of one of his few respectable clients, Jacqueline Smith, of an inheritance of $1,500,000 from an American uncle. In keeping with the plan, Col. Alex Lutman, an ex-convict, and the lawyer are stopping at the same hotel in London. In direct financial stride, Mrs. Smith has persuaded Jacqueline to marry Lutman, an unspectacular failure in business, the plan of the three men to have her property assigned to him before their marriage, then splitting up the inheritance before she learns of it. Lutman, as Jim's "trustee," has returned marked "insufficient funds" more reluctant than ever to go through with the scheme and stalls by telling them all the property deed must be signed in London. Back in London Charles leaves Lutman in his office while he goes after Jim Asson. Mrs. Smith and Jacqueline arrive at Stuckey's office to sign the deed.

CHAPTER 20

"MY DEAR," said Jacqueline's mother gently when her daughter, in Stuckey's office, began to grow suspicious about signing the deed. "You must remember that you are dealing with English gentlemen, and they naturally wish that you should be safeguarded in every possible way. If Mr. Stuckey will be good enough to produce the document, we will get it signed at once."

"Just a minute, please, mother. There are one or two points I'd like cleared up before I sign. I want to ask Charles about them."

"Very well," agreed Mrs. Smith. "You and I will have a little chat with Mr. Stuckey, shall we?"

"If you're getting married too, mother, yes. Otherwise, I'd rather talk to Charles alone."

"My dear, that hardly seems necessary."

"It's quite unnecessary," said Jim Asson. "Goodness knows what there is to make all this fuss about. The thing's quite straightforward."

Lutman silenced him with a look. "It seems to me, Jacqueline," he said, "that if Mr. Stuckey assures you that the deed is all in order and very much to your advantage..."

"It seems to be," interrupted Charles, with a sudden harshness in his voice, "that if Miss Jacqueline wishes to consult me in private she is perfectly entitled to do so."

Lutman glared at him; Mrs. Smith glared at him; Jim Asson glared at him. But, since Jacqueline rewarded his outburst with an approving smile, the glances seemed to Charles of very little consequence.

"It's just a waste of time," grumbled Jim Asson. "It's quite an ordinary marriage settlement."

Charles turned on him with angry eyes. "Yes, but it's my marriage settlement, and it concerns me more than you, and if I want to talk to Charles about it I'm going to do so, and if you or anyone else tries any more to prevent me, I shall drop the whole thing."

"Quite right," said Charles, and faced another battery of glares. "I must say, Mr. Stuckey," began Mrs. Smith freely, "that your attitude strikes me as most extraordinary."

"You can take it or leave it, mother," Jacqueline said. "Either I speak to Charles alone or the whole thing's off. I can't see what you're all here for, anyway. I could perfectly well have come and seen Charles and signed the deed alone. I don't need three of you to help me write my name."

"So ungrateful!" sighed Mrs. Smith. "After coming all this way through those dreadful streets and waiting goodness knows how long in a musty old office..."

"The best thing you can do, mother, is to go home—by taxi," advised Jacqueline. "I'll be along later. Go and call a taxi, please. Jim—and there's no need for you to come back. I'll see you later, too."

Jim went sulkily toward the

"Nothing tremendous ever happens to me, Jacqueline"

door, and Jacqueline turned to the Colonel and held out her hand.

"Goodbye, Colonel," she said. "Thank you so much for arranging everything. If you want to do another good deed, see mother home, will you? If you're very nice to her I daresay she'll let you pay the taxi fare."

The Colonel screwed in his eyeglass and smiled at Mrs. Smith. "If you will honor me by lunching with me, Mrs. Smith..."

"I'm really not fit to be seen, Colonel, but if you don't mind taking a rag-bag to lunch..."

At the door, Mrs. Smith paused and glanced back. "I hope, Jacqueline," she said, "that you will allow no one to dissuade you from doing your duty to yourself and your mother, and, with a parting glare at Charles, she followed the Colonel from the room."

Charles turned to Charles with a smile. "Charles, we are alone! And now we can talk."

"Fine," said Charles. "I say, it's nice to see you again."

"Do sit down," went on Charles, as he pulled a chair forward. "This one's been dusted this morning. As a matter of fact, the whole office has been dusted—windows and everything."

Charles sat down with a smile. "Even the old gentleman outside?"

Charles shook his head. "That is old Bells, my chief clerk. He's been here as long as the river Thames, and if I had him dusted I'm afraid he would resign. Do you like my office?"

Charles glanced round. "It is a perfect setting for Mr. Bells," she said.

"And for me?"

She shook her head. "For the 'Mouthpiece' perhaps, but not for you. Charles, are you quite sure you don't drink? Because if it isn't drink, what is it? You can't tell me this is where you ought to be."

Charles gave a shrug. "Here I am, anyway."

"Yes, I know. You're queer, you know, Charles—such a nice man, really, and yet such a dreadful coward."

"Coward?" Charles' face showed pain and indignation. Jacqueline nodded.

"Yes, a coward. I believe so, anyway. I believe something tremendous has happened in your life to push you down, and now you need something else tremendous to happen to give you the courage to get up again."

"Nothing tremendous ever happens to me, Jacqueline."

"Sure?"

"I'm not. I'm not so sure, Charles, that something tremendous hasn't happened to you quite recently. And I've an idea that you're too much of a coward to face the consequences of admitting it. Isn't that true?"

Charles avoided her eyes. "Haven't we better get to business?" he suggested.

Charles smiled at his troubled face. "Coward again! All right, we'll get to business. I'm going to marry Jim Asson, Charles. You know that, don't you?"

"Yes," said Charles miserably. "Yes, I suppose you are."

"But it won't last long. I know that. So do you, don't you? And I know you hate the idea of my marrying Jim, but you haven't the pluck to say so—not even when I'm not here. But I can't help myself, Charles. I'm caught. I've read old-fashioned stories about daughters who married to save their families from ruin, and I used to scream with laughter at the idea. But it isn't really funny."

"No," agreed Charles, "it isn't really funny."

"But I'm swallowing it down with one gulp, and—never mind that, though. Let's be practical and unsentimental—and hard-headed and unemotional, shall we? Where's the deed?"

"In my safe."

"Aren't you going to get it out?"

"Righto," said Charles, crossed to the safe, took out a document, and seated himself at his desk.

Here it is. It needs only your signature. He glanced at the document in his hand. "Ten thousand dollars a year for you and $5,000 a year for your mother. You'd better read it through."

He held out the document, but she brushed it aside.

"I'm not interested, Charles," she said. "Give me a pen and I'll sign it. It's all right, I suppose, if you say so."

(Editor's Note: Harry Woodring, Secretary of War, is taken for a free ride on The Washington Merry-Go-Round in the personality sketch that follows. He gets the Merry-Go-Round's coveted Brass Ring.)

WASHINGTON—The elevation of Harry H. Woodring to the rank of Secretary of War is an illustration of Roosevelt's greatest personal weakness. He cannot be hard-boiled with those around him.

Roosevelt did not want Woodring as Secretary of War. He did not even relish him as Assistant Secretary of War. The generals did not want him. Not even Jim Farley wanted him. But Harry Woodring is now Secretary of War.

The answer is that Harry just loved being acting-Secretary of War, and Roosevelt couldn't bear to hear his happiness. Harry has a lovely wife, and they have two lovely babies. There were wise enough to select son Jimmy Roosevelt as best man when they were married. And whenever F. D. Roosevelt came home from one of his many trips, Harry was always at the Union Station to meet him.

In addition to all this, there wasn't anyone else clamoring to be Secretary of War. So after George Dern died, Woodring became Acting Secretary, and finally full-fledged Secretary of War.

War Contracts Scandal
All of which goes to prove that the memory of mankind is short. For it was not long before this that Harry Woodring, then a much-criticized Assistant Secretary of War, was pleading for his political life before a grand jury investigating charges of fraud in Army contracts.

Had the hand of fate predicted to Roosevelt at that time, that Harry Woodring was going to become a full-fledged member of his Cabinet, he never would have believed it. For at that time Woodring even suffered the humiliation of having his chief, Secretary Dern, order him to keep a register of every caller at his office and submit the list for inspection twice a week.

Too Friendly
The chief trouble with Woodring was too many friends from Kansas and too great an anxiety to please. Some of those friends were interested in getting Army contracts. One friend, Ralph O'Neill, represented Joe Silverman, second-hand dealer, who bought 50,000 raincoats for 25c apiece, then wanted to sell them back to the Army for $1.32, which was 65c cheaper than the Army could get them elsewhere.

The Army needed the raincoats, but bought them for $1.97 from somebody else.

Since his was the lowest bid, Silverman and O'Neill threatened to sue. So Woodring worked out a deal by which the raincoats were returned to the Army, and Silverman was given saddles, bridles and tent covers in exchange.

But before they could be delivered, General MacArthur stepped in and called it an "outrage and robbery of the American taxpayer."

There were other Army bids involving airplanes and trucks, all of which caused a terrific furore at the time, plus a congressional investigation. But when Roosevelt appointed Woodring Secretary of War three years later, everyone had forgotten it. There was not a line about it in any newspaper.

Horatio Alger (2) Woodring
When Harry Woodring pleaded his case before the grand jury investigating Army contracts, the argument that made the biggest impression upon the jurors was his description of how he began life as janitor of a bank in Neodesha, Kansas. Tears came to his eyes as he recounted the struggle of those early years.

The only thing Harry neglected to say was that his father owned the bank.

This explains young Woodring's meteoric rise to be president and chief owner of a bank at the age of 31. All the biographical sketches of our hero portray him selling popcorn in the streets, and working his way up from the lowly life of a poor farm boy.

Harry did work hard. But he had a few lucky boosts along the way. One boost was his enlistment as a private in 1917. Through no fault of his own, Harry got no further than Camp Colt, at Gettysburg, Pa. But in later years this service helped make him Kansas commander of the American Legion, and gave him a filip toward the governorship of the State in 1920.

Woodring was one of only three Democrats elected Governor of Kansas in 76 years, and he scraped in by a margin of only 251 votes and a pure fluke. He was picked originally as a "sacrifice" candidate. The Democrats had to nominate someone. He was elected because of a tactical fight within Republican ranks.

Once elected, however, he was a first-rate Governor, and kept the allegiance of a Republican legislature. On the whole his was a New Deal Administration. He even preceded Roosevelt in setting up a social security program.

Mrs. Woodring
When Woodring first came to Washington as Assistant War Secretary, he came as a bachelor. But one of the best things he did was to marry the daughter of Senator Marcus Coolidge of Massachusetts, distantly related to Calvin Coolidge, though a Democrat.

Helen Coolidge already was known to Washington as an artist of some talent. She had studied under Fritz Winold Reiss, and had done crayon sketches of various Washington figures, even making a trip to the Northwest where she made drawings of Indian and cowboy life.

It was her ambition to do a complete set of the 96 Senators, a goal which was rudely wrecked on the rocks of matrimony.

Instead she is now raising two small Woodrings, 150 chickens, and a cow that gives 28 quarts of milk daily. She has played a very important part in her husband's definite promotion to Secretary of War. For there is nothing Roosevelt hates more than to interrupt marital bliss, especially where a pretty wife is involved.

And Helen Woodring didn't like the idea of going back to Kansas.

BABY NOW SAFE IN SUMMER

The baby's first summer used to be dangerous, but it no longer is terrifying to the young mother, and this is largely because of the crusade for pure milk.

While the crusade for pure milk was started by the milk industry in the middle of the 1900s, the big impetus to modern milk sanitation came with the introduction of pasteurization.

Miss Foster, pianist, and Ralph Hawley, violinist, both students at the University of Kansas, united their musical talents in a recital recently sponsored by the fine arts school. Referring to Miss Foster a newspaper article stated:

"Miss Foster who came here after two years at Christian College, was from the studio of Prof. Howard C. Taylor, and through three well chosen and interesting groups gave fine evidence of the progress she has made. She possesses a technique of considerable proportions and played with assurance and plenty of spirit. She opened her part of the program with the sombre and stately Sarabande by Rabeau arranged by Godowsky, following this by the E minor Prelude and Fugue by Mendelssohn, a work not often played on concert programs but still one of interest and appeal. Her second group brought forth the clever 'Jugglers' by Moszkowski, 'Primavera' by the Russian composer Medner, the Rachmaninoff 'Etude' Op. 33, No. 8 and Saint-Saens' brilliant 'Allegro Appassionato.' To close the program Miss Foster with Professor Taylor at the second piano gave an interesting and brilliant performance of the first movement from the melodious Moszkowski Concerto in E major. Miss Foster was enthusiastically applauded by the audience after each group.

"The stage was decorated with numerous baskets of flowers and Miss Foster was also the recipient of several bouquets."

TRAVEL INCREASE ON LAKES TO THE GULF HIGHWAY

Tourists Find It Roadway Through One of Most Scenic Sections

U.S. 65 Lakes to Gulf Highway

DES MOINES, Ia., June 5.—On the map above is shown the noted U. S. 65 Lakes to Gulf Highway—extending under a single federal highway number from Minneapolis to New Orleans.

This heavily travelled north-south route is the successor to the famous old Jefferson Highway, for so many years the favorite travel pathway from Lakes to Gulf.

A handsome, new map-folder showing in detail the route of the highway, with all the towns upon it, has just been issued. The map is right up to date, showing new paving and recent changes. It also gives a long list of places of historic and scenic interest for the convenience of travelers. No charge is made for supplying them.

Letters received by Lester Milligan of Mason City, Ia., president of the highway, tell of the constantly increasing travel over this beautiful historic and well paved route.

"The tourist will find in U. S. 65 highway a splendid, direct road through one of the most scenic portions of the United States. The road is the best paved and the most popular north-south travel route in the Midwest," say Mr. Milligan.

$52,000 DAMAGE IN ST. LOUIS FIRE

ST. LOUIS, June 5.—(P)—Fire that broke out early last night in the 5-story building occupied by the St. Louis Seed Company caused an estimated $52,000 damage, said Fire Chief John O'Boyle. The building is located near the lower end of Washington Avenue, only a few blocks from the heart of the downtown business district.

Heavy clouds of smoke rolled out of the two upper stories for 20 minutes before flames broke through the roof. A three-alarm brought scores of pieces of fire fighting apparatus to the scene, and streets were jammed with thousands of onlookers.

Three firemen were injured, none seriously.

DR. KELLER READS CONTEST PAPER

Dr. Roy M. Keller, local chiropractor, appeared before the Missouri State Chiropractors Association convention held in Jefferson City Saturday and gave a paper entitled "Nerve Irritation—Genesis of Pathology."

This paper is to be entered in a national contest being held by the National Chiropractic Association for the best paper on a scientific subject for the year. Each state association submits one paper which the state officers have chosen from those submitted.

A number of papers had been presented to the state association and that of Dr. Keller was selected by the officers.

ADVICE ON GROWING OF SOYBEANS

Successful growing of soybeans in Pettis county depends on several factors which are: variety, proper preparation of the seedbed, time of planting, method of planting, rate of planting and inoculation of the seed, says J. U. Morris, county extension agent.

The seedbed preparation for soybeans should be about the same as for corn. Fall or early spring plowing is best but not essential though the land should be plowed if possible at least three weeks before the crop is to be planted. In order to kill the weeds and make the surface smooth and mellow, the final step in seedbed preparation should be thorough disking and harrowing immediately before planting.

Land that is naturally loose and mellow, and reasonably free from trash, can be put in condition by a good disking in the early spring and again just before planting time and will not need to be plowed.

The Missouri College of Agriculture recommends planting by June 10 in this area of the state.

The method of planting a crop of soybeans will depend on the fertility of the land, "foulness" of the land with weed seed, and the purpose for which the crop is to be grown.

For seed production soybeans should be drilled solid on land capable of producing 30 or more bushels of corn in a normal season. On less productive land planting in cultivated rows is best. For hay the crop should be drilled solid except on very poor land, where it should be planted in rows. If the land is exceptionally "foul," it is advisable to drill in rows so they can be cultivated. Soybean rows should be spaced only as far apart as is necessary to permit good cultivation with corn cultivators. Double rowing with a corn planter makes the rows too close to use a cultivator and too far apart to keep weeds down. It may work satisfactory on clean land.

The minimum rate of planting under favorable soil and weather conditions is 60 to 75 pounds of good seed to the acre for drilling solid, and 20 to 25 pounds in the row. These rates should be increased 20 to 50 per cent on fertile land foul with weeds, and on a rough, cloddy seedbed.

The best varieties for hay are Virginia and Wilson. Virginia is superior on medium to low fertility soil. On good land, Wilson and Virginia make approximately the same yields but Wilson produces a fine quality hay and is slightly more resistant to lodging.

Soybean seed should be inoculated before being seeded unless soybeans have been grown on the land before and produced nodules profusely.

THREE SENTENCED TO JAIL ON TRESPASS CHARGES

Lethal Gas Bill Destined To End 'Roman Holidays'

JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—(P)—Governor Lloyd C. Stark Friday signed the "lethal gas" bill, destined to eliminate executions by hanging in Missouri county seat towns—the law since the state has had laws.

The measure—authored by Senator Paul C. Jones, Kennett, who called public hangings "Roman holidays"—will go into effect 90 days after adjournment of the assembly, but those already under sentence, or sentenced between now and next September, still will be hung.

A $5,000 appropriation to build the new gas chamber at the state penitentiary here was placed in the omnibus appropriations bill by the senate Friday.

After the new law becomes effective all those sentenced to death will pay the penalty in the new room—a speedy and painless death with only a few to witness it.

Library News

(By The Librarian)
New fiction at the Sedalia Public Library includes:

Bread Into Roses, by Kathleen Norris. Gay days and New York social prominence, at first, for beautiful Sanna Farjeon. Then follows the loss of her husband's love and her retreat to a Connecticut farm. Here she finds satisfaction in rural life, and after her husband's death, romance and a happy marriage.

The Four Marys, by Fanny Haeslip Lea. Mary, who still lives in each of the others, Molly, Meg, and Mimi—these are the "Four Marys" which are portrayed in this novel of present-day New York. Fanny Haeslip Lea understands equally the problems of Meg, the successful book critic; her old-fashioned mother, Molly; and her typically modern daughter, Mimi. This delightful romance is handled with her accustomed wit and cleverness.

Let Me Die Tuesday, by Helen Topping Miller. Nancy Phillips does not fit into the sophisticated environment of the wealthy family of which she is the younger daughter. At twenty-one, she is in love with her sister's fiancee and, unintentionally, lets him know it. When, therefore, the couple quarrel and break their engagement, he turns to Nancy. Meanwhile, he turns to Nancy, who is the very opposite of this man, has come into her life and Nancy has a struggle to determine where happiness lies.

Ill Met By Moonlight, by Mrs. Zenith Brown. A romantic mystery—a thrilling plot—and clever, diverting dialogue, so comfortably well-written that when a shot is fired, the mind is not distracted by the English in which it is done. An exotic woman comes near wrecking several normally calm lives in a New Jersey summer colony.

Moon Over Stamboul, by Anne Duffield. Serena Starr, who has led a sheltered life, goes to Constantinople as secretary to her aunt. She becomes involved in the romance of her cousin, Sir Peter, and the beautiful Zeldah. After many heartaches and considerable intrigue, Serena straightens out her cousin's affair and finds a perfectly good lover of her own. A pleasant, light and very romantic tale.

The Outward Room, by Millen Brand. Remarkable for its insight into the mind of a woman hovering between insanity and sanity, is this novel. The story of Harriet's escape from the asylum, where psy-choanalysis had failed to cure her, and her gradual recovery through her return to normal life and a man she loves, is at once tense and delicately done.

As Long As I Live, by Emille Loring. Soon after meeting lovely Joan Crofton, Craig Lamont, supposedly girl-proof, falls deeply in love. Misunderstandings and complications arise, and love has a difficult time to find the way. Plenty of suspense makes this a story that Mrs. Loring's large following will read with interest.

West of the Pecos, by Zane Grey. Directly after the Civil War, whole families migrated "west of the Pecos" to take up ranching in a country infested with unfriendly Indians and desperadoes. With this as a background, the author draws a characteristically vivid and romantic picture of the hardships, thrilling experiences, and courage of the young settlers.

ESTATE LEFT BY J. D. ROCKEFELLER SR., $25,000,000

Mrs. Margaret Strong de Cuevas Major Beneficiary Under Will

By The Associated Press.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 5.—The "relatively small" estate left by John D. Rockefeller, Sr., turned out today to be approximately $25,000,000, which may shrink to $10,000,000 by the time the tax collectors are through.

Principal beneficiaries named in the capitalist's will, which was filed here for probate, were Mrs. Margaret Strong De Cuevas, a grand daughter, and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

Mr. Rockefeller explained, in a codicil dated Oct. 3, 1934, that he already had made ample provision for his other heirs.

Much of the tremendous fortune he developed during the first half of his life from the Standard Oil trust, mines, railroads and other enterprises had been spread over a variety of philanthropic institutions long before he died, on May 23 at Ormond Beach, Fla. The rest had been distributed among members of the family.

While neither affirming nor denying that his fortune once was well in excess of two billion dollars, his public relations counselors announced at the time of his death that his estate was "relatively small" and "very liquid."

His public benefactions totaled $530,830,000.

The petition for the probate of his will listed his personal holdings as "over $10,000,000." The $25,000,000 estimate was supplied by persons familiar with his affairs.

As originally drawn, on June 2, 1925, the will directed that the residuary estate be divided equally between his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Foundation, organized in 1915 in memory of his wife.

But by a final codicil the entire residuary estate was left in trust to Mrs. De Cuevas and her children. The three trustees, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Bertram Cutler, a corporation director, and Thomas M. Debevoise, attorney, were empowered in their discretion to pay the income to Mrs. De Cuevas, to her children, or the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research.

On the death of Mrs. De Cuevas the trust is to be divided among her descendants and in turn, passed on in principal to her grandchildren, with the proviso that if there are no descendants living it is to revert to the Rockefeller Institute.

In explaining the bequest, Mr. Rockefeller wrote:

"I am setting up this trust for the benefit of my granddaughter Margaret and her descendants to the exclusion of my other grandchildren and their descendants because when the time came that I felt it wise to place upon my children the responsibility of owning and administering substantial sums and for that purpose made large gifts to or for them, my oldest daughter Bessie, the mother of my granddaughter Margaret, was not living."

Internal revenue officials in Washington estimated the maximum taxes on the estate, if it amounts to $25,000,000 would be $15,112,000. A little less than one-third, or about $4,350,000 of this, would go to New York state. They pointed out, however, that some of the estate might not be taxable.

TOWNSEND PLAN EXECUTIVES RESIGN

CHICAGO, June 5.—(P)—Dr. Frances E. Townsend conferred with associates and refused any comment today after 12 major executives of his old age pension movement submitted their resignations.

The mass resignation of national officers was announced by J. W. Brinton, vice president and general manager of the Townsend National Recovery Plan, Inc., and of the Townsend Weekly, after he and 11 other key executives had signed a formal statement criticizing the elderly California physician for carrying on "a fight against legislation proposed by the president which has no bearing on the Townsend plan."

Statement Is Issued

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(P)—Blair Coan, who said he represented Dr. Frances E. Townsend, issued the following statement tonight which he said Townsend telephoned to him from Chicago:

"The attempt to disrupt our organization just as we seemed assured of the required number of signatures to force the bill (old age pension) onto the floor of congress for discussion does not fool the ten million members of the Townsend organization. Enemies of the plan boring from within in the last desperate stroke attempted a coup d'etat. Their failure is now complete. x x x"

Giving It Up

"Have ye paid yer tax, Pat?" "No, In 'I'm glad I haven't."

"How's that?" "I got a form today that says 'Final Notice,' so it looks as if they're givin' it up as a bad job."

Assembly Makes Ready For The Final Curtain

the federal child welfare program for the first time.

Doubling of the sales tax was not the only increase in taxation agreed upon by the legislature. With administration support, it voted to hike the gasoline tax from 2 to 3 cents a gallon after December 7, 1937.

Auto Fees Cut In 1939

The one noticeable reduction to receive the approval of the general assembly was a 50 per cent cut in state automobile license fees for passenger cars beginning in 1939. Stark recently stated such a reduction would nullify the "gas" tax increase which he said was needed for the continued construction of farm-to-market roads.

Urged by the governor as highway safety measures, the general assembly passed a drivers license law, and voted appropriations to increase the personnel of the state highway patrol by 30 troopers. The patrol's radio service would also be expanded.

Permanent registration bills for St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph also were sent to the governor's desk, despite some opposition to the first two measures because they did not include signature clauses for comparative purposes at voting booths.

The capital punishment law was changed by providing for the execution of condemned men by use of lethal gas in the state penitentiary here. This eventually will do away with "Roman holiday" hangings in county seat towns.

Establishment of a state cancer hospital with supplementary clinics was another accomplishment of the legislature.

The office of county treasurer, abolished the first of this year, was re-created in 74 counties. A proposed salary reduction for county collectors was defeated, and pay increases for numerous county officials were approved by the lawmakers.

In general, Stark's legislative program as outlined in his inaugural address was put into effect.

Exceptions, however, were the establishment of the state revenue department, approval of a teachers retirement fund, abolishment of the 5-cent state property tax, and an increase in pay for members of the general assembly.

Construction of the state office building to house departments unable to find space in the capitol appeared assured with the approval by both houses of an $850,000 appropriation.

Prison reform was confined to the establishment of the three-member state board on probations and paroles, which would take over and expand duties now vested in the penal board.

Both houses approved legislation to repeal the Jones-Munzer delinquent tax collection system by re-establishing the old law through the filing of suit of tax attorneys.

Vetoed "Shotgun Motion"

The only major measure vetoed so far by the governor was the so-called "shotgun motion" which would have repealed the law requiring that grounds for asking new trials in criminal cases be set forth specifically.

For the fourth time in the last decade, the legislature refused to ratify the proposed federal child labor amendment.

Two investigations marked the five-month session. One was an inquiry by the house insurance committee into the fire insurance compromise and fee allowances in which a clean bill of health was given, and the other an inquiry by the attorney general's department into alleged irregularities in clerical hire by the house. The latter investigation is still under way.

And this session will be remembered by the "sit-down" strike staged by Dr. J. A. Gary, Republican of Atchison County, in his campaign in which he charged that more than the constitutional limit of 160 legislative clerks were on the payroll. He remained in the capitol on a bread and water diet for 32 hours to obtain the payroll list.

GAIN IN FARMERS CASH INCOME

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The bureau of agricultural economics reported today a 6 per cent gain in farmers' cash income from marketing of principal farm products in the first four months of 1937.

Economists placed the January-April, 1937, total at $2,322,000,000 compared with $1,997,000,000 in the like period of last year. Government benefit payments sent the total up to $2,604,000,000 compared with $2,050,000,000.

The April cash income amounted to $583,000,000, compared with $493,000,000 in the same month of last year. Government payments totalled $76,000,000 compared with $37,000,000.

ENTERTAINMENT IS GIVEN BY 4-H CLUBS

There were about three hundred persons who attended the 4-H club picture show and entertainment at Liberty park Saturday afternoon and evening. The feature of the entertainment was a dramatized talking version of the novel "Under Two Flags." It was preceded by a news reel showing the 1936 corn husking contest and activities of the National 4-H club congress in Chicago.

The program closed with pictures of Aesop Fables.

SWIFT CHANGES COME IN AN ERA IN U. S. AVIATION

Single Motored 'Gnats' Be Discarded For Speedier and Better Planes

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—An era in American aviation, a swift-change ten years peopled with such figures as Charles A. Lindbergh and Will Rogers, will end next month, and as the book closes on its accomplishments a man will begin gathering the dust which makes legends.

The man is a composite individual, the transport of yesterday who knew his passengers' first names and their home towns (and sometimes even about Aunt Kate's arthritis) before the plane was ten minutes away from the airport.

Will Rogers knew him well, for he was piloting the late American humorist across a mountain and plain in the days which cemented the close personal relationship between flier and passenger. Even after Col. Lindbergh laid out a transcontinental route from New York to Los Angeles and tri-motored transports were born, the man at the helm of a passenger-laden plane in scheduled flight made it his business to see that everybody afloat was comfortable and easy of mind.

His forte, of course, was the small airplane, fitted with three or four seats. His nemesis is the big airplane, that impersonal aggregation of intricate machinery with a mechanical department up forward where two visored and efficient gentlemen run the thing.

Next month the last of the single-motored gnats which used to thresh the air wherever a tail wind offered help, Varney Air Transport, one of the pioneer concerns, now operating between El Paso, Tex., and Pueblo, Colo., will place in operation swift new bi-motored equipment.

If yesterday's transport pilot, bounding along at 100 miles an hour, is a composite, Al Cabana may well represent him. Al will have a visored headgear pretty soon, and he won't be able to pass those notes back to his cabin passengers any more. He liked that. Made everything chummy.

On those long jumps over the mountains, with nothing but the radio range beacon and airport orders to listen to, it helps pass the time to talk with his passengers. A man gets bored looking at the scenery over the same route for five long years. He knows to the second when he will sight old Fort Union—"starboard," he writes, "they used to fight Indians from there"—and he knows to the foot what a run it will take to get off the ground at Las Vegas with a 15 mile wind.

His schedule worries him. If the mailman is three minutes late at the airport in Trinidad, Al drums with his fingers on the leathered circlet of his cockpit. His schedule reads, "Ar. Pueblo 5:35 p. m." and that is his obligation to the passengers behind him.

"Over the hump now," he scribbles on a pad and passes it back through a small port hole in the passengers' compartment bulkhead, "Hold your hat, 11,000 feet."

And again: "Ranch, portside, lots of movie people."

The pilot-passenger friendship grew up back in 1927, in the days when National Air Transport was flying three-seat Travelair machines between Chicago and Dallas, and Northwest Airlines was running 4-place Stinsons from Chicago to Minneapolis.

About that time, too, two-passenger Ryan monoplanes were plying between Chicago and St. Louis, Boeing biplanes, with a brace of passengers squeezed into a tiny cabin in front of a pilot who rode in the open air, soon were dropping between Chicago and the West Coast. Then the Ford Company brought out an all-metal job with three motors, and men shook their heads over all that speed of 110 miles an hour and reckoned the millennium had been reached.

The Ford perhaps ushered in the divorce between pilot and passenger, and the Boeing low-wing, also carrying ten passengers but at the fabulous speed of 160 miles an hour, abetted it. Today the passenger in a 14 or 12-passenger air liner seldom knows the men beyond the forward bulkhead except by their uniforms.

"Swell," says Cabana of the new, great-winged jobs as he pumps down the landing gear and brings down his little puddle-jumper on three points, but it sounds like nostalgia.

The former Governor of New York came from Florence to see Il Duce. They talked in English for 15 minutes.

"We banded it off fifty-fifty," Al said later. "I interviewed him half the time and he interviewed me half the time. We each had a batting average of .500."

But what Al said to Benito and vice versa is still pretty much of a secret.

"I'm going to write about that myself," Smith said.

AL SMITH IN A CHAT WITH IL DUCE

ROME, June 5.—(P)—Al Smith talked to Benito Mussolini today but what they said is tentatively stored away under Al's brown derby.

The former Governor of New York came from Florence to see Il Duce. They talked in English for 15 minutes.

"We banded it off fifty-fifty," Al said later. "I interviewed him half the time and he interviewed me half the time. We each had a batting average of .500."

Direct Relief Cut To Boost Pension Funds

ted the schedule as a substitute for Senator M. E. Casey's suggested $1,500 annual salary, which was defeated at the polls last fall.

"People didn't like the last proposal because it was too drastic an increase and called for paying the legislature while not in session, which is contrary to Missouri custom," said Donnelly.

"But I think the people realize more money is justified. There'll be no more 70-day sessions of the legislature, not because we aren't doing our work on time but because there are a lot more problems to contend with now."

Casey suggested the legislature should organize for its proposal.

"The people approved an amendment for the protection of squirrels last fall because somebody pushed it," he said.

Michael Kinney, St. Louis, wanted to ask authorization to let the assembly fix its own compensation.

"Of course we wouldn't abuse that privilege," said Allen McReynolds, Carthage, smiling, "but we couldn't make the people think we wouldn't."

The proposal must be passed on a final senate roll call, and then approved by the house before going to the ballot.

The house concurred in senate amendments to a bill to increase from 2 to 4 years the terms of mayors of third class cities, but kept terms for aldermen at 2 years, sending it to the governor.

A bill to increase annual license fees of drug stores selling package liquors was defeated by 29 to 38 vote.

Efforts of J. F. Bentley of Randolph County to bring up for final passage a senate measure to designate the board of curators of the University of Missouri as the official agency to receive federal funds and cooperate in the soil conservation and domestic allotment program failed.

The chain store tax bill was among a dozen house measures still pending for perfection or final passage and wiped off the calendar today by adoption of the motion by Roy Hamlin of Hannibal, majority floor leader, to postpone their consideration "indefinitely." They had no chance, Hamlin said, this late in the session.

JURY TAKES UP ANTI-NEPOTISM

MOBERLY, Mo., June 5.—(P)—The Randolph county grand jury, reporting violations of the state constitution's anti-nepotism provisions recommended today quo warranto proceedings be filed against 10 school directors unless they resign.

Mentioned in the report were: I. V. Sherwood, member of the grand jury and a rural school director, and Mrs. Ruby Thornburg, who have resigned, and three Moberly men, Forest Martin, R. L. Kingsbury, and Dr. F. L. McCormick.

Martin and Kingsbury have been members of the school board 22 years. McCormick has served nine years. His son is a teacher and athletic coach at the junior high school. Kingsbury's daughter is a high school teacher, and three of Martin's relatives are employees of the Moberly school system.

The three Moberly men made no statement regarding their intentions. They said they did not believe they violated the law, as they left the meeting room when their relatives were discussed and voted upon by the board.

Others mentioned in the report were: Bryan Naylor of Renick; I. G. Moore and Elmer Elliott, both of Jacksonville; Roy Adams and Arthur Haak, both rural directors.

MAN JAILED AFTER "BUYING" WOMAN

NEVADA CITY, Calif., June 5.—(P)—William Ebaugh, 29, six foot, 235 pound woodsman, was jailed today on Mrs. Ray Delama's charge that he kept her captive three months after "buying" her from her husband for $20.

William B. Woods, sheriff's deputy, said Ebaugh admitted paying Mrs. Delama's husband $20 for her and also admitted he broke her ribs "when I hugged her too tight."

Sheriff C. J. Tobiasen started a search for Delama.

The sheriff said Mrs. Delama told him she escaped from Ebaugh's cabin last night.

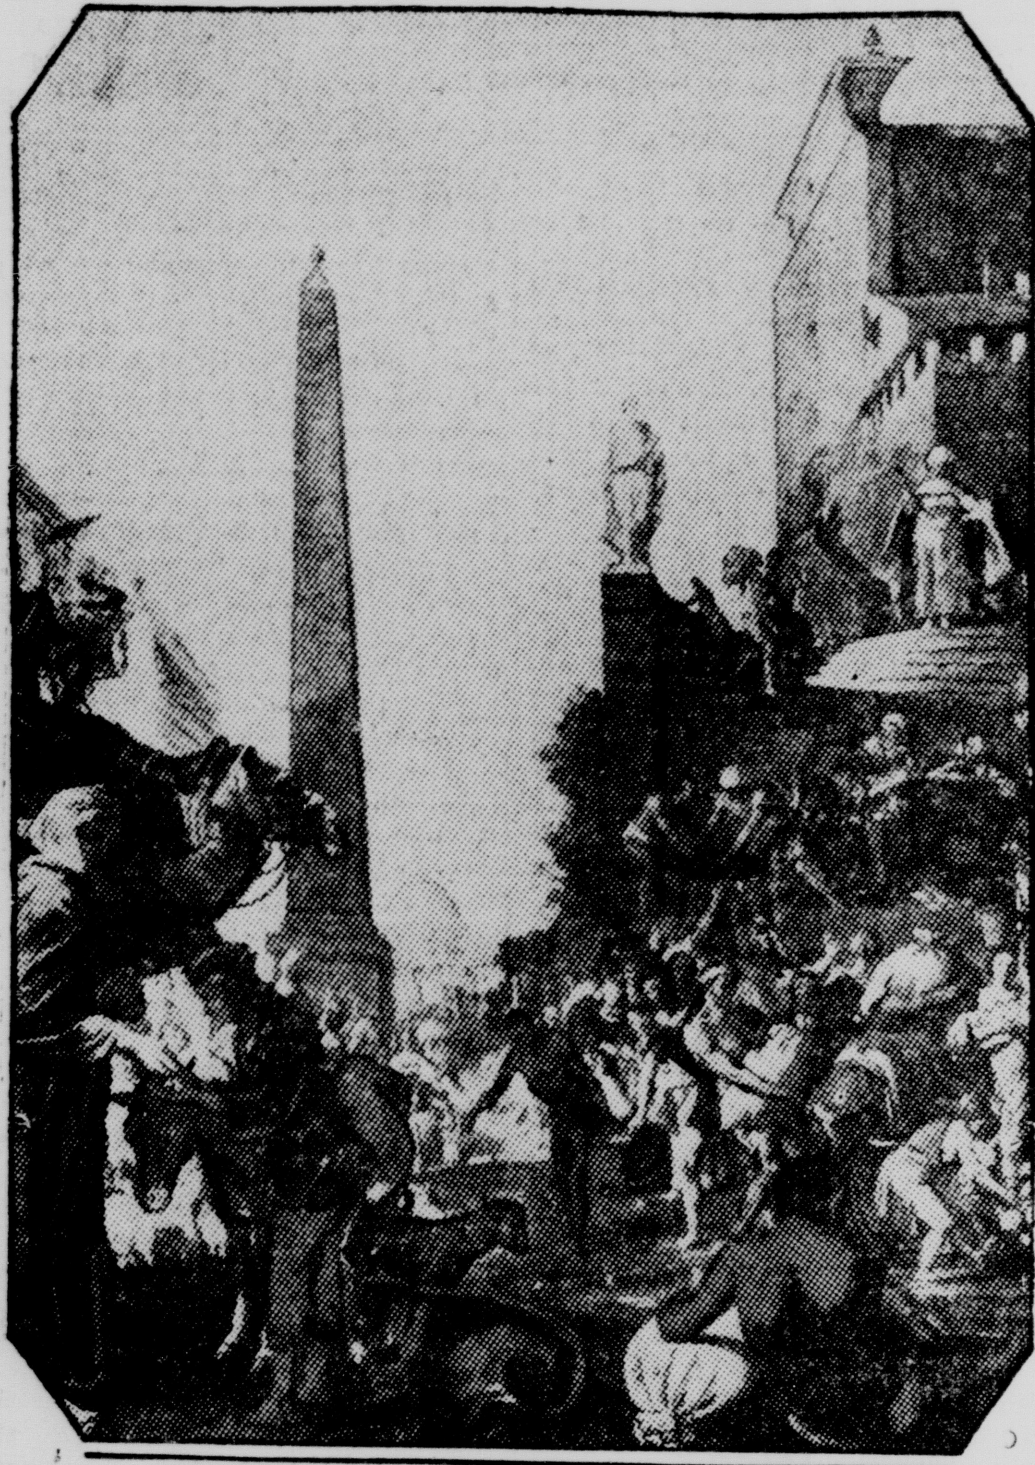

She told the sheriff her husband became "tired" of her three months ago and she went to Ebaugh's cabin, presumably to work for him.

Joseph's Readiness for Service

"Brass Tacks" on the Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Proverbs 22:29—"Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 6 is Genesis, chapters 37, 39, 40 and 41, especially 41:33-44, the Golden Text being Proverbs 22:29, "Seest thou a man diligent in his business? he shall stand before kings.")

Joseph is the most Christlike character of the Old Testament; both were beloved sons; both were hated of their brethren; both were murdered by their brethren; both were humiliated and then highly exalted; both forgave their brethren their sins and poured out blessings upon them in return.

The Unspoiled Son
That Joseph was ready to serve when God's time came to use him was due in large measure to the fact that Joseph was removed from the pampering influence of his father. Jacob should have remembered how his own father, Isaac, had favored Esau over himself, and therefore, should have resolved never to show such partiality among his own children. Instead, we read, "Now Israel loved Joseph more than all his children, because he was the son of his old age; and he made him a coat of many colors. And when his brethren ren saw that their father loved him more than all his brethren, they hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him." Poor Joseph was in a bad spot between his father's inordinate pampering and his brother's resultant jealousy.

Joseph in Egypt
After Joseph's brethren had sold their 17-year-old brother to a caravan of Ishmaelites en route to Egypt's slave market they planned a cruel deceit upon their aged father to induce him to conclude that Joseph had been killed by some wild animal. "And he knew it and said, It is my son's coat; an evil beast hath devoured him; Joseph is without doubt rent in pieces. And Jacob rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his loins, and mourned for his son many days." Thus by the deceit of his own sons was Jacob repaid for his deceiving of his father Isaac.

In Egypt Joseph became the slave of Potiphar an officer of Pharaoh. Far from succumbing to his degrading environment, though away from home and kindred, Joseph remained true to the ideals implanted in him by his home and religion. His reply to the seductive temptation of Potiphar's wife is unequaled as an example to those who "would be pure for the sake of those who care." "How can I do this great wickedness, and sin against God?" He went to prison for it, "but the Lord was with Joseph, and showed him mercy, and gave him favor in the sight of the keeper of the prison."

The Dreamer Interprets Dreams
In prison Joseph achieved a reputation as an interpreter of dreams. So, when Pharaoh was troubled over his strange dream of seven lean cattle devouring the seven fat cattle, and the seven thin ears of corn devouring the seven good ears, Joseph was sent for to interpret the king's dreams. "It is not in me: God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace," said the faithful Jew, now a young man of 30 years. Thus he gave God credit for the forecasting of the seven years of prosperity and seven years of depression about to befall Egypt, and his plan for the conservation of the surplus of the years of plenty to provide for the famine of the lean years to follow. Joseph's service to the nation was rewarded with promotion, as a result of which Joseph later was able to save his father and the brethren who sold him into slavery.

CHURCH MINISTERS TO WHOLE FAMILY

The Pettis County Council of Religious Education is in receipt of a special article relative to criticism directed at the church by both its friends and foes.

It says in part:
"The church is the one institution which ministers to the whole of the family life. We need an institution of that sort. The family is so frequently divided in its various activities that there is danger of disintegration. The church serves the whole of the family life. There are many other valuable organizations which serve a part of family life. The son and the daughter may be members of the 4-H club, a mighty fine club, indeed. But, this club does not serve the whole of the family. Father is a member of the Masonic order—a mighty fine order, but it does not serve the whole of the family. Mother has her club, but it doesn't minister to the whole of the family life. The church is the one institution serving the whole of the family. On Sunday morning the whole family may go together to the church."

"The church is the institution which brings encouragement and comfort in times of sorrow. No other institution has ever surpassed it. We need an institution which will bring us inspiration and courage and comfort in time of sorrow and distress."
"The church is the only institution which sends missionaries to the various parts of the world. Where is there another institution that can muster so many men and women willing to give their whole lives to the love and service of men and women whom they know not at all? We need an institution which develops altruism in our lives."

"The church is still the best antidote for crime. In an age noted for its criminal tendencies, an institution of this sort is a blessing. The County Sunday School Council invites all who read this article to take a deeper interest in the work of the church in their communities."

TWO WOMEN WHO CAN KEEP SECRET

By The Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—Add two names to the list of women who can keep a secret.

They are those of Mrs. Ralph Alexander of Columbia, and Roberta Phelps of Salisbury, who have been assisting the senate appropriations committee in its work of revising funds bills to come within the state's income.

Mrs. Alexander is secretary to Chairman J. S. Rollins of the committee. She sits in on every "closed" session, keeps track of the hundreds of changes, and even exceeds the 12 to 15 hours a day committee members have been putting in lately.

With the aid of Miss Phelps she's ready with amendments when the bills "hit the floor," because of her knowledge of committee work she has sometimes been called "the junior senator from Boone."

If knowledge of committee decisions were to get around before each bill is ready for the floor, members would be bombarded with requests to "keep my appropriation where it is" and work delayed indefinitely.

Hence the necessity for secrecy. Mrs. Alexander and Miss Phelps have one standing answer to all questions:

"You'll have to ask Senator Rollins."

And Senator Rollins likewise has a standing answer:

"You'll have to wait until that item reaches the floor."

GYPSIES TO CAPITAL FOR A WEDDING

By The Associated Press.
JEFFERSON CITY, June 5.—With mingled curiosity and uneasiness this capital city—scene of a dozen varied conventions in the last six months—will play the host on June 10 to a gathering of Gypsies from all over the country, summoned by tribal edict to attend a wedding of two young members of the clan.

Chief Jack Haley is now encamped on the edge of town with a small party, awaiting the arrival of, he said, about 500 guests.

Haley, who would not reveal to outsiders the identity of the young couple, said he would officiate as head of the tribe in a "blood union" marriage ritual.

The bride and groom appear before the chief for the ritual, after days of preparation. Each holds out a hand, and the chief opens a vein in their palms. Their hands are then bound together, the blood of the two combining.

They are then considered man and wife.

ALL-DAY SESSION BY EXTENSION CLUB

The Liberty Home Economics Extension club held an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. Park Green on route 1, June 2.

At roll call each gave their favorite salad and the recipes.

Mrs. Botts, the game and song leader, gave a prize to the one knowing the club song, it going to Mrs. Gordon Smith.

Mrs. Claire Montgomery gave a talk on canning and garden pests. The afternoon was spent studying wild flowers.

The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. T. H. Scheurman on R. F. D. 1.

EXTENSION CLUB OF HUGHESVILLE MET

Twenty-two members and three guests were present at the Hughesville Extension Club Friday.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. P. Fowler, the vice-president, Mrs. Harold Conway, presided. Mrs. Charles Bliss acted as secretary.

The farm bureau program was in charge of Mrs. Sidney Swope, Mesdames Leland Beal, D. R. Powell, G. A. Callis and Lawson McCurdy contributed to the program with poems and interesting things about the month of June.

Mrs. G. G. Gorrell and Mrs. Henry Nagel reported on their projects—flowers and food respectively. Mrs. John Fowler gave a parliamentary drill.

Hostess for the day were Mesdames John McCurdy, John Callis, S. W. McClure, C. L. Rages and Miss Catherine Fowler. The main dish of the menu was fried chicken.

JUDGE PROCLAIMS "NO DIVORCE WEEK"

EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 5.—Superior Judge Benjamin E. Buente today proclaimed the week of June 6 to 12 "no divorce week" in his court and suggested that Uncle Sam provide loans to smooth the way for newlyweds.

Judge Buente said he chose the "month of brides" as the fitting time to emphasize that "the family still is the social unit and the home the social stronghold."

It will be the second annual observance of "no divorce week" in his court.

"This in itself will not solve anything," said Judge Buente, "but its purpose is to call attention once more to the fact that the marriage relationship is supposed to be permanent. There are approximately 100,000 children involved annually in American divorces."

The jurist cited a decision of the United States supreme court in 1887 which said:

"Marriage is an institution, in the maintenance of which its purity the public is deeply interested, and it is the foundation of the family and of society, without which there would be neither civilization nor progress."

Suggesting government loans to newlyweds as one means of lowering the divorce rates, Judge Buente said:

"Much of the marital discord apparently occurs over family finances incident to home establishment. Low rate interest loans by the federal government to needy newly married couples would no doubt help in stabilizing family and home life in America."

He urged uniform marriage and divorce laws throughout the nation and suggested that "congress authorize the appointment of a study commission and from this study draft a model marriage and divorce law which could be recommended for adoption by the respective states."

ATHLETICS PLAY K. C. POLICEMEN THIS AFTERNOON

Visitors Will Have Some Outstanding Semi-Pro Players in Lineup

The Kansas City Police team, one of the best semi-pro baseball clubs in Kansas City will furnish the opposition for the Sedalia Athletics this afternoon at Liberty park. The game is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

Gene Horner, fast ball pitcher of the local team, will pit his speed against the Policemen who probably will have Humphreys, a former Boston Red Sox hurler, on the mound. The visitors placed fourth in the Kansas state semi-pro baseball tournament last year and among their victims this season are such teams as the Pittsburg, Kas., Pirates and the Excelsior Springs Veterans.

The Sedalians have lost but one game this season, to the Columbia Merchants under the lights last Tuesday, and then it was not until the eighth inning that the Columbians could send across the winning runs.

The Policemen have a number of players who are well known to local fans as several of them have appeared in Sedalia before. The visitors' lineup probably will be: Gormley, 1b; Shoemaker, 2b; Adams, 3b; Clark, 3b; Bowles, 1f; Barnett, cf; George, 1f; Frey, c; and Humphreys, Kammert or Cooley, p.

Summers, athletic catcher, probably will be unable to play because of a hand injury suffered at Columbia and Simons is scheduled to do the receiving. The remainder of the Athletics lineup will be: Livenood, 1b; Lobough or Barnes, 2b; Light, ss; Small, 3b; Case, 1f; Brownfield or Barnes, cf; Zey, 1f, and Horner, p.

PROS SHATTER PAR IN INVERNESS BEST BALL MATCH PLAY TOURNEY

TOLEDO, June 5.—(P)—Eighty-two birdies and five eagles trickled into the cups today as Tommy Armour and Jimmy Thomson shot themselves from nowhere into a tie for the lead in the Inverness best ball match play tourney which ends Sunday.

Every hole was a birdie's nest, not one being able to baffle the 16 top-notch professionals in the battle for the $4,825 in prize money.

Alongside Armour and Thomson at the peak were Ralph Guldahl and "Slamming Sammy" Snead, who won a pair of matches today as the two Scotchmen won one and lost one.

After losing one down to Guldahl and Snead in the morning round, Armour and Thomson banked into the tourney leaders, Horton Smith and "Lighthouse" Harry Cooper, this afternoon.

The result was a four-up victory for Thomson and Armour.

With two matches coming up Sunday, the scrambled standing tonight was:

Armour-Thomson, plus 5; Guldahl-Snead, plus 5; Paul Runyan-Ky Laffoon, plus 3; Smith-Cooper, plus 3; Denny Shute-Lawson, tie, minus 1; Henry Pickard-Johnny Revolta, minus 2; Ray Mangrum-Jimmy Hines, minus 6; and Olin Dutra-Gene Sarazen, minus 7.

LOUIS' CHIN STILL TARGET FOR RIGHT

KENOSHA, Wis., June 5.—(P)—Today, 17 days before his date with James J. Braddock at Comiskey Park in Chicago, Joe Louis demonstrated: 1—He still can be hit with a right hand; 2—Nothing has happened to his own punching power when he wants to use it.

In the tenth boxing drill of his schedule of 19 the brown bomber took another lesson against the punch with which Max Schmeling slowed up his spectacular march through the heavyweights a year ago.

He was clipped three times with right hand punches, twice by Salvatore Ruggirello, tall Italian heavyweight from New York who can punch and once by Leonard Dixon, spindly-legged Negro from Philadelphia, whose punching power is not so pronounced. Both paid later, although neither was knocked down.

SCHULTE HIT BY A PITCHER BALL; INJURY NOT SERIOUS

NEW YORK, June 5.—(P)—Fred Schulte, Pittsburgh Pirates' utility outfielder, was injured by a pitched ball in today's game with the Giants, but physicians said tonight X-ray examinations showed no sign of a fracture.

SOFTBALL GAMES AT PARK MONDAY

Two softball games which were to have been a part of the exhibition schedule at Liberty Park last week, but were cancelled because of rain have been re-scheduled for Monday night, Donald Davenport, supervisor of the City league, has announced.

The doubleheader will send the Missouri Pacific Boosters against Shryack-Wright at 7:30 o'clock and the American Disinfecting Company against the Katy at 8:30 o'clock. These are the only teams among the prospective entries in the City league which have not played in the exhibition round.

In re-scheduling the exhibitions Davenport said it had been considered advisable to delay the start of league play until a definite agreement could be reached with the park board on the number of days the ball park would be available to the league each week. The two games previously had been cancelled to make way for the start of the league Monday.

New American Record Is Set by Cunningham

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Glenn Cunningham of the New York Curb Exchange created a new American record in winning the three-quarter mile run, feature event of the sixtieth annual spring games of the New York A. C., by a margin of ten yards over his old sparring mate, Gene Venke, of the New York A. C.

The Kansan stepped off the distance on the historic track in 3 minutes, 8.10 seconds to displace the American record of 3:01.4 created by Joseph Mangin in the same event two years ago.

BELMONT STAKES TO WAR ADMIRAL IN RECORD TIME

Son of Man O'War Clips Fifth of a Second Off His Daddy's Mark

BL ALAN GOULD

NEW YORK, June 5.—War Admiral, the mighty little son of Man O'War flashed a record-smashing display of speed today to capture the classic Belmont stakes with ease and become the fourth three-year-old in thoroughbred history to wear the prized "triple crown."

Despite an injury to his right fore-quarter at the very start, where the odds-on favorite in the seven-horse field kicked himself and nearly went down, War Admiral spurred quickly to the front, kept full command all the way, and won off by himself like a true son of the renowned super-horse.

The Samuel D. Riddle colt galloped home four good lengths in front of Maxwell Howard's Sceneshifter, with the long-shot Vamoose in third place, ten lengths further back, and the highly-rated Pompoon a badly whipped sixth. Pompoon, never was a contender.

War Admiral equalled the American record, clipped a large chunk off the Belmont stakes mark, and, as a climax, knocked a fifth-second off his daddy's track record by stepping the mile and a half in 2:28 3-5.

The Riddle star carried 126 pounds, eight more than Man O'War did when the super-horse set the track mark of 2:28 4-5 in 1920. The former record for the Belmont stakes 2:29 1-4 was set by Peace Chance in 1934.

A crowd of 35,000 acclaimed the three-year-old.

War Admiral went to the post the 9 to 10 choice but won like a 1 to 10 shot. The victory added $38,020 to the colt's rapidly-mounting earnings now totaling $144,620 for this season and $159,420 for two years of racing.

It remained to be determined whether War Admiral's injury was severe enough to keep the colt out of training for any length of time or jeopardize his chances of going on to further triumphs in the east or middle west.

A trickle of blood showed on the right fore-quarter as War Admiral was led from the track. Jockey Charlie Kurtsinger said the mishap occurred in the first few jumps from the start-gate and that he was afraid, for a moment, War Admiral was going down.

Running smoothly through the stretch, War Admiral held his own without the slightest urging from Kurtsinger, and scored one of the most decisive victories in the history of the stake. Trailing Sceneshifter and Vamoose, a 60 to 1 shot, were E. R. Bradley's Brooklyn, Flying Scot, Pompoon and Melodist.

TALES IN TIDBITS

Grind Ax for Rajah, $20,000 Manager
Fans Help Amos Rusie, Old Speed King
Cubs' Press Box Is Haven for Hungry

NEW YORK, June 5.—They are sharpening the ax in St. Louis for Rogers Hornsby, whose Browns seem to have sunk to a new low this year. . . . Prexy Don Barnes is said to have engaged in several battles with the Rajah during a recent tour trip in which the Browns won two games and dropped 13.

Hornsby is reported to have refused to accede to Barnes' suggestion for betterment of the ball club, telling him that the club was being run by a man named Rogers Hornsby. . . . and that was that.

The Rajah has a two-year contract with the Browns, calling for $20,000 a year, but President Barnes says the contract is such that it can be broken for 1938 if the Browns do not come up to expectations. . . . there are 900 stockholders in the new ownership, and most of these people are fans who want the club to win. . . . It looks bad for the old gent from Texas at this writing.

Fans have come to the aid of Amos Rusie, once great speedball pitcher assuring him of a home and income after a mortgage on his home at Auburn, Wash., had been foreclosed and he had been left without funds. . . . Gifts to Rusie and his invalid wife assure them of a place in which to live and no financial worries for the rest of their lives. . . . A Seattle newspaper conducted a campaign for the couple, and was assisted materially by the Sporting News, national baseball publication. . . . Funds from the All-Star game treasury, which I understand now has about $200,000 to administer, were sent to relieve the pitcher's distress.

Spencer Abbott, Pacific Coast fire-eater, was let out as manager of the Seattle club because he was too harsh on the players. . . . Pitcher Clyde Hatter, sent to Toledo by Detroit, was fined $200 for breaking training rules after arrival with the Mud Hens. . . . Mad Hat.

Jim Bottomley, first baseman of the Browns, has a cow which he calls Fielder's Choice. . . . Fielder's Choice is anticipating a blessed event. . . . If male, the offspring will be named Beau Bell, after the Brownies' slugger outfielder. . . . That reminds me of Wilky Moore's mules. . . . he called one Babe and the other Ruth. . . . One of baseball's brighter friendships is that between Mickey Cochrane and Cy Perkins. . . . Cy was Connie Mack's first string catcher before Mickey displaced him in 1925, but instead of becoming enemies (as might be supposed), they became the closest pals. . . . and when Mickey got the job of managing the Tigers, the first thing he did was to bring Cy on from the Yankees as coach. . . . Mickey is said to have lost heavily in the market crash of 1928, putting up lots of bucks in an effort to save some of Cy's stocks.

The tall, husky Maryville star led Donald Dunn, dusky Pittsburg flash, to the tape in both events, with Jack Richardson, Kansas speedster, third in the 200 and unplaced in the century. The times were :10.5 for the 100 meters and :20.9 for the 200.

Verne Summer, teammate of San Roman, also edged in on the glory, setting records in both the 110-meter and 200-meter hurdles with times of :14.6 and :23.4, respectively.

Jack Buckman, Argentine high school lad lost his high jump crown as Tom Stevens, Pittsburg athlete, leaped 6 feet 3 3/4 inches. Buckman, unable to cope with the soft take-off, went out at 6 feet 1 inch and placed third.

Harold Manning, former Wichita athlete and a perennial distance man, broke his own 5,000-meter mark with a time of 15:30.2. Only three men finished, Manning lapping one of the other two.

Other marks to fall were the broad jump, won by Kermit King of Pittsburg with a leap of 24 feet 5 3/4 inches; the discus, in which Charles Socolofsky upset a Kansas State teammate, Paul Fanning, by winning with a 149-foot toss; the javelin, won by Asa Eagles of Ottawa University with a 201-foot 2-inch toss, and the mile relay, in which Kansas State was timed in 3:19.8.

DIZZY DEAN RETURNS TO MOUND AND BEATS PHILS BY 3-1 SCORE

By The Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Dizzy Dean, suspended for three days for "popping off," returned to action today and, although he struck out three times, pitched the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3 to 1 victory over the Phillies. It was his seventh victory of the season against four defeats.

Dizzy complained of a sore arm before the game, but it must have been his left one because he yielded only six hits, issued only one base on balls and struck out seven. In the sixth when Scharen singled and Chuck Klein doubled with only one out, Dizzy, complained of the heat and called time while he sat down on the pitcher's mound to cool off.

After the delay, to which Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Phils protested to no avail, Dizzy fanned Morrie Aronovich and made Dolph Camilli, whose single in the fourth had scored the Phils lone run, fly to Pepper Martin in center.

Claude Passeau pitched a good game for the Phils, but lost when an error by Scharen in the fourth paved the way for two unearned runs. The Cards got their other run in the first when Medwick singled J. Martin home.

ELEVEN NEW MARKS SET IN MO. VALLEY A. A. U. TRACK MEET

KANSAS CITY, June 5.—(P)—Topped by a brilliant 1,500-meter performance by Archie San Roman, Emporia Teachers College ace, 11 records were established in the sixth annual Missouri Valley AAU track and field meet here today.

Pittsburg Teachers retained the team title with 40 points, five more than were registered by the second-place Kansas State squad.

San Roman, running virtually without opposition, was timed in 3:50.3, the performance representing probably the fastest 1500-meter time in the nation this year, and only three-tenths of a second slower than San Roman's time in placing fourth in the Olympic event.

Taking a slice of the spotlight was Herschel Neil, the Maryville, Mo., State Teachers College one-man track team. Neil won the 100 and 200-meter runs in record times, won the hop, step, and jump, and placed second in the broad jump for a total of 18 points and individual scoring honors.

The tall, husky Maryville star led Donald Dunn, dusky Pittsburg flash, to the tape in both events, with Jack Richardson, Kansas speedster, third in the 200 and unplaced in the century. The times were :10.5 for the 100 meters and :20.9 for the 200.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. Every time we have a heavy rain the water seeps through the concrete foundation of our house and causes a damp unpleasant condition in the cellar. Can you suggest some way this can be corrected from the inside? We whitewashed the walls hoping this would correct it, but it does not.

A. Waterproof your cellar from the inside by cleaning down the walls, removing all whitewashing and leaving the blocks exposed, then have a coating of metallic waterproofing placed on the inside of the wall with a 3/4-inch coating of rich cement plaster about 1 to 3 mix. If the floor leaks as well, this treatment should be carried across the floor in one continuous operation. This work should be done by experienced operators so it would be advisable to employ a firm that makes a specialty of it.

Q. How should a new hard pine floor be finished?

A. This depends on the type and use to which the floor is put. Before any finish is applied, the floor should be properly planed or sanded. If the floor is to be darkened to harmonize more perfectly with the furnishings, a penetrating stain should be applied. The stained floor should dry and be kept free from dust for 24 hours before the varnish or wax coats are applied. If the floor is to have hard usage and is flat-grained, a good floor varnish should be used. If it is comb-grained, it can be stained, filled, and waxed, or it can be finished with a floor varnish as described above. Pine floors may also be painted, preferably with at least two coats and then waxed.

Q. Can anything be done to stop the decay of wood once it has started to rot?

A. Only the complete removal of the rotted wood can save the remaining wood. If the decay is caused by dry rot which is a fungus that will spread, the infected wood must be cut out completely and destroyed. When the decay is caused by dampness, after the rotted wood is removed and replaced, the cause of the dampness should be stopped or only wood treated with preservatives should be used for replacements.

Q. My bathroom wall is plastered and we want to finish it with tile. Is it necessary to remove the plaster first?

A. Yes. All the plaster should be removed to the height of the tile. The tile should only be applied on a good grade of metal lath over wood stud partitions. If the walls are of masonry, the entire surface should be cleaned preferably with a chemical before attempting to apply the tile.

Q. The flue from my kitchen coal stove will not draw. It connects into the main furnace chimney flue which is plenty large enough to dispose of smoke from both. Something must be wrong. Can you tell me what it might be?

A. Your trouble lies in the fact that you have connected your kitchen flue into one already used. It is against the principles of good chimney construction to connect more than one opening into each flue. To avoid your difficulty, a separate flue must be constructed either in a new chimney, or in a corbelled upper portion of the present one, or if the present main flue is very large, it may be possible to divide it into two separate flues. It is advisable to consult a competent heating man.

Q. Is indoor paint suitable for exterior use?

A. Outdoor paint can be used anywhere, but paints intended for indoor use should not be exposed either to weather or to air that is continuously moist. Paint for use outdoors must have qualities suited to exposure. It should have elasticity, that quality which allows it to expand and contract with extremes of temperature; also tightness which causes it to hold to its base and be proof against hard-driven rain; toughness to stand the beating of sleet storms and other severe exposure.

Q. I would like a frosted or obscure glass effect on one of my windows. How can this be done without replacing the present glass?

A. Clean the glass with alcohol; cut out a sheet of tissue paper of the desired color to fit the glass and apply a spar varnish thinned with a quarter as much turpentine. This will penetrate the paper and stick it to the glass as well as make the paper water resistant.

Q. Water is seeping through our cellar windows. It seems to come from the areas outside. What can we do about this?

A. The water probably comes up through the bottom of the areas. Put a concrete floor in the areas about 8 inches below the sill and pipe the collecting water to a dry well, which should be located at least 8 feet from the house.

Q. Our garage is not connected with our house, but is a short walk from the service entrance. This is inconvenient in rainy weather. Do you think it would be practical to attempt to tear down the present structure and build a connecting one? Our house is of white frame construction.

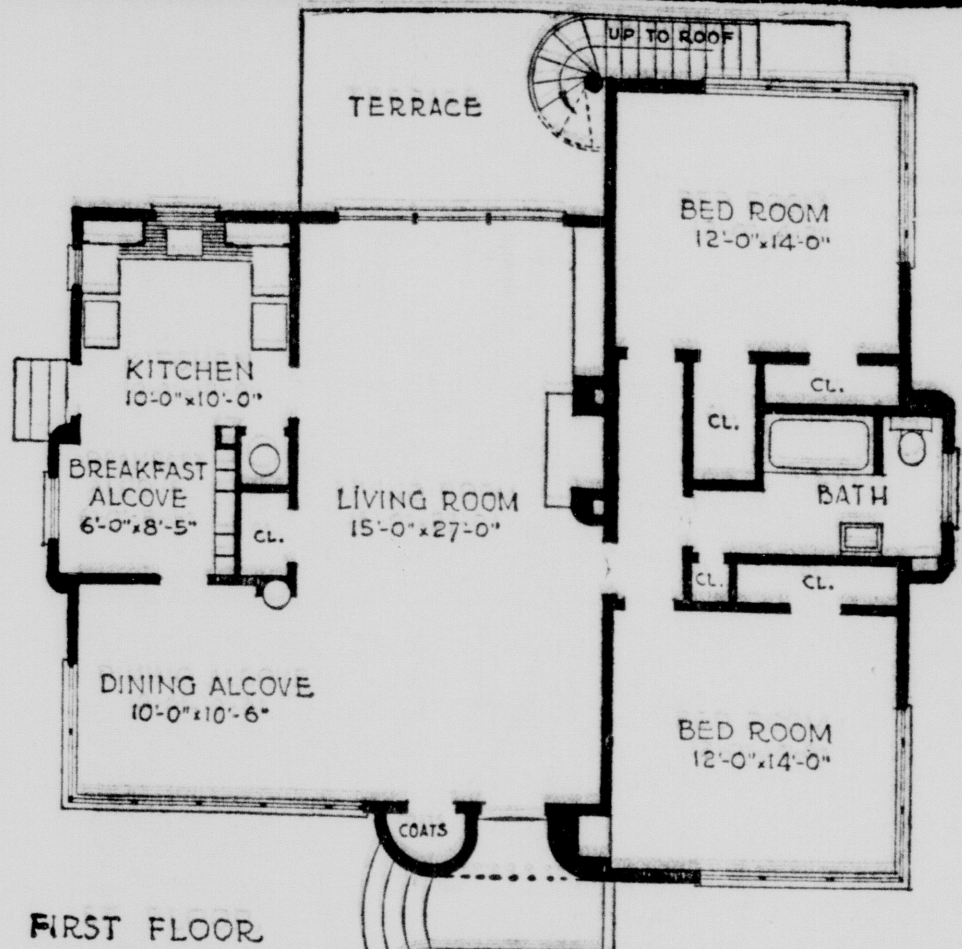

A. If the present garage is in good condition, it would not be advisable to tear it down and build another. At less cost and with a possible pleasing effect a covered or enclosed passage could be built between your service entrance and the garage.

Modern Distinction

This is a house of distinctly modern design in which no attempt is made to recreate any style of the past. Smooth surfaced walls, large glass areas, and metal window frames logically develop contemporary ideas. The plan is well studied and provides sleeping quarters away from the noise and odors of the kitchen and a large living room accessible to a terrace. An outside stair leads from this terrace to the deck above. The dining alcove adds spaciousness to the living room.

The house was designed by the architectural firm of Adams & Adams, and is located at San Antonio, Tex. The property, which is valued at $6,500, is financed by a $5,200 mortgage insured by the Federal Housing Administration. Monthly payments of $45.42 include amortization, interest, taxes, insurance, and other fixed charges.

DISCUSSION HELD ON PEACE GARDEN

The Sunny Side Homemakers club discussed the International Peace Garden which is located in Dakota in the United States and Manitoba, Canada, consisting of 2,200 acres now under the control of the International Peace Garden Corporation. This dedication inscription was read aloud in 1932, "To God in his glory we two nations dedicate this garden and pledge ourselves that so long as man shall live we will not take up arms against one another." What would it mean to the world if other historic borders would substitute flowers and friendship for fortifications and instruments of death?

The club met at the home of Mrs. W. P. Tucker. She was assisted by her daughter, Miss Alice.

The program was as follows:

Devotional, Mrs. Harry Sneed. Roll call, answered by something pertaining to Flag day.

Report of committee on buying fruit jar lids and rubbers by Mrs. Hosford and Mrs. Robert Norton. Mrs. Sneed read the news letter.

Demonstration of sandwich and salad, Mrs. Rodenbach.

Parliamentary drill, Mrs. W. P. Tucker.

Program arranged by Mrs. Hefferman.

Wild flowers, Mrs. Montgomery.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Milton Lewis, July 7th.

PRESIDENT FOR TENANT AID CUT

WASHINGTON, June 5.—(AP)—Congress received word Friday that President Roosevelt wants it to appropriate $10,000,000 instead of the $50,000,000 favored by congressional farm leaders, to help farm tenants purchase homes of their own in the next fiscal year.

Chairman Bankhead (D. Ala.) of the senate agricultural committee disclosed President Roosevelt's desire for curtailment of the proposed tenant aid program after a White House conference. He said the chief executive would approve a bill appropriating $10,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, $25,000,000 the next year and $50,000,000 the third.

The house agriculture committee has approved legislation which would provide $50,000,000 annually for five years for long-time, low interest loans to tenant farm buyers selected by local committees.

There has been no action on this measure since the committee reported it favorably to the house on April 8. House leaders said they wanted to wait until it was determined whether the proposed appropriations were consistent with Mr. Roosevelt's recent appeal for economy.

Senator Bankhead, in his statement after conferring with President Roosevelt today, did not disclose the president's attitude toward the house tenancy bill's provisions.

PETITION AGAINST ADVISORY BODY

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 5.—Boyle Clark, general chairman of the bar committee of Missouri, and six members of his advisory committee, today were named defendants in a petition filed in the Boone county circuit court for declaratory judgment as to whether insurance company representatives engaged in the practice of law in the investigation and settlement of policyholders' claims.

William H. Hogsett, Kansas City, filed the petition, naming as defendants Clark and his advisory committee composed of James A. Parks, John C. Grover, J. D. James, Grover C. Sibley and Albert F. Hillix.

Insurance companies named in the action included the Liberty Mutual Insurance Company, American Mutual Insurance Company, Employers' Mutual Indemnity Corporation, Hardware Mutual Casualty Company and the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Company.

The companies set out that they operate along certain lines in paying their claims, and petition the court to decide whether, under the decisions and statutes of Missouri, they are engaging in the practice of law. The petition charged that the Missouri statute defining the practice of law is unconstitutional, in that it is "unreasonable, indefinite and arbitrary."

The petition pointed out that the suit resulted from "a campaign waged by Clark and his committee, which has had as its object the barring of laymen from all activities which, in the committee's opinion, constitute the practice of law."

The women, members of the National Spinsters' Pension Association, want "pensions for spinsters at 55."

At present, they may not claim government pensions until they are 65.

Led by their national organizer, Miss Florence White, they gathered for an indignation meeting at a west end hall before marching through the streets behind cars bearing banners stating their demands.

UAW SPEAKERS ASSAIL FORD IN MASS MEETING

Challenge Formation of Independent Group of Company Workers

By The Associated Press.
DETROIT, June 5.—Henry Ford was assailed by speakers addressing a rally of members of the United Automobile Workers of America today within sight of the Ford Motor Company's Rouge plant.

The meeting, part of the union's drive to enroll Ford workers, was held as a protest against the beating of U. A. W. A. members near the plant last week and as a challenge to the formation of an "independent" group by company employees.

Homer Martin, international president of the U. A. W. A., declared that the union would "drive Henry Ford out of business" and demanded that the federal government "disarm the Ford arsenal and Ford thugs."

An effigy of Henry Ford beside a German Nazi swastika faced the speaker's stand.

The union chief described Ford's labor policies as "fascism" and, turning to the effigy, said:

"If you stay in America, you are going to go along with the American people."

Representative Maury Maverick (D-Tex.) said the union's campaign to organize Ford employees is "the major surge of the workers' movement of America" and said Ford would be "stupid" not to line up with the union.

"You have as much brains and better leadership than the industrial leaders of this country," the congressman told the union auto workers.

Another U. A. W. A. outdoor rally at Flint tonight was postponed to tomorrow night because of a thunderstorm.

Ford Brotherhood Formed

The organization of the Ford Brotherhood of America, Inc., with a claim of 7,000 members signed in two days, was revealed by one of the founders, Byrd W. Scott, who said he has been a machinist at the Ford company for 20 years.

Immediate charges of U. A. D. A. leaders that the brotherhood was a "company union" were met by a statement from Scott that the group had received no backing of any kind from the company.

Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, said he had no knowledge of the organization and intended to investigate.

Scott said, "the organization was formed because we wanted an independent labor organization, one not affiliated with any national union." He said the F. B. A. would seek to extend its activity to Ford plants in other parts of the country.

SECRET PROCESS TO MUMMIFY DEAD

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Methods employed by ancient Egyptians in mummifying their dead have been revealed, he said, including the University of Illinois and the University of Chicago.

"Success depends entirely on the proper combination of preservative ingredients and upon the exact timing of the process," Weidemann said.

Although the process is expensive, Weidemann saw an immediate practical use for it in preserving the noted dead in open vaults for future generations. Last week, he said, he offered to preserve the body of John D. Rockefeller, Sr.

Weidemann is 26 and was not graduated from college. He spent several years in research work at the University of Chicago.

Pettis County Farmers Attend Red Sorrel Demonstration Meeting

Thirteen Pettis county men interested in control and eradication of noxious weeds attended the red sorrel demonstration meeting in the Dresden community. J. U. Morris, county extension agent, discussed the most practical methods of eradicating and controlling noxious weeds when found growing under different conditions.

Two plots of red sorrel were treated prior to the meeting to show the value of chemicals as a method of control. On one of these plots, calcium chlorate (atacide) was used at the rate of 3 1/2 to 4 pounds per square rod. On the second plot, gas tar was used and showed good results. While both treatments were successful in killing the weeds, they would have been of still more value in eradicating the weeds if applied earlier in the spring so that no seed would have matured.

Where noxious weeds, such as red sorrel, field bindweed, and Canadian thistle are found in small patches in meadows and pastures, they can be controlled through the use of chemicals. When found scattered through the entire field, the most practical and satisfactory method of control is through a good crop rotation which does not leave the field in a sod crop for more than a year or two. Liming and fertilizing to increase soil fertility thereby increasing vegetative growth of the crops is very important in this method of control. This increased vegetative growth will tend to help in smothering out the weeds.

When this type of weed, which spreads through an underground root system as well as through seeds, is found in small patches in a cultivated field, these patches should not be cultivated through when working the remainder of the field. This tends to spread the infestation. In this case a good vegetative growth of the weeds should be allowed to develop and then eradicated with a treatment of chemicals.

Bindweed can be most effectively controlled by the use of chemicals when either treated in the spring or fall. If fall treatment is to be used, an application of calcium chlorate (atacide) applied at the rate of 3 pounds per square rod for two applications this fall along with October will be most satisfactory. Sodium chlorate has a serious drawback in that when in combination with organic matter becomes highly inflammable, ignites easily upon friction, and burns with great rapidity. Atacide does not have this serious drawback and is much safer.

LINDBERGH LAUDS EXPERIMENTS OF PROF. GODDARD

Sees Rocket as Possible Answer to Higher Speed In Transportation

By The Associated Press.

WORCHESTER, Mass., June 5.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today saw in the rocket experiments of a publicity-shy Massachusetts University professor a possible answer to aviation's hope for a new high speed in transportation.

The aviator-scientist lauded the experimental work of Professor Robert H. Goddard of Clark University in a letter read at the Clark commencement exercises.

Colonel Lindbergh compared Goddard's research with the aeronautical pioneering of Langley and Wright 41 years ago.

"From the standpoint of commerce," Lindbergh wrote, "we must look to the rocket if we hope to attain speeds of transport above a few hundred miles an hour."

"As the airplane gave man freedom from the earth, the rocket offers him freedom from the air. The rocket offers the only known possibility of sending instruments to altitudes above those reached by sounding balloons."

His letter was written from England to President Wallace W. Atwood of Clark, and brought an immediate response from figures prominent in the annals of experimental aeronautics.

Such eminent aeronautical scientists as Professor Alexander Klemin of the Daniel Guggenheim School of Aeronautics at New York University, and Fred W. Kessler of New York, a rocket enthusiast, who set off the first rocket flight carrying U. S. mail, hailed Lindbergh's views with satisfaction.

All had words of praise for the unassuming Clark professor, who for 30 years has experimented with power rockets.

The Worcester professor first perfected methods of propulsion and control of rockets, and then sought a vehicle that would pierce the mysteries of the stratosphere. Ultimately, his powerful cylinders attained a speed of 700 miles per hour.

Goddard's experimental rockets resemble very closely on a large scale, the Fourth-of-July variety of sky-rockets. They are approximately a foot in diameter and about twelve feet long, with pointed noses and four fins at their tails.

For many years Colonel Lindbergh closely followed Goddard's work.

Professor Klemin today termed Goddard "probably the foremost in the field" and characterized the Worcester scientist's rocket motor, which uses oxygen and gasoline for fuel, as "probably the best of its kind ever designed."

Possibilities Are Seen

Col. Lindbergh, in the letter read today, told of the tremendous possibilities in the Goddard rocket. "From the standpoint of commerce it is a significant fact that the efficiency of the jet is greatest at velocities which the propeller can never reach."

"From the standpoint of war, we must consider the fact that rockets may carry explosives faster than the airplane and farther than the projectile."

"Whether instruments, mail or explosives can be carried advantageously by rockets is a question for future research to decide."

Kessler, who, from New York, spoke with satisfaction of Colonel Lindbergh's interest, sent off the first rocket flight carrying U. S. mail on February 23, 1936.

There were 6,000 pieces of mail aboard that rocket ship as it flew from 200 to 250 feet across the New Jersey-New York state line near Greenwood Lake, N. J. The Kessler rocketplane was about 15 feet long and had a 16-foot wing span.

A reference to stratospheric and interplanetary travel of passenger rocket ships was contained in the conclusion of Lindbergh's letter.

"In an unguarded moment," the Colonel wrote, "a rocket enthusiast might prophesy that we will eventually travel at speeds governed only by the acceleration which the human body can stand, and that in rocketing between America and Europe we will accelerate half way across the ocean and decelerate during the other half. Or, he might even point his rocket toward another planet, and, without regard for fuel supply, landing facilities or Prof. Goddard, lose himself in interstellar space."

Unlikely Exceed Sound

LANGLEY FIELD, Va., June 5.—When Col. Charles A. Lindbergh wrote that in rockets law man's hope of attaining speeds of transport "above a few hundred miles an hour," he referred to a fresh and discouraging discovery of aeronautical engineers.

That is: With the world's current knowledge, it appears unlikely that speed in the air with conventional airplanes ever will be beyond, or even slightly below, that of sound—roughly, 700 miles an hour.

The present high speed record for an airplane is held by Francesco Agello, of Italy, who in 1934 attained 440.681 miles an hour. Most of today's big transport airplanes fly slightly in excess of 200 miles an hour.

The barrier to a speed of say, 1,000 miles an hour, is air, the medium which sustains the machine. At speeds approaching that of sound, aeronautical engineers have discovered, air becomes for all practical purposes as solid as concrete to a wing thrust through it.

In extensive experiments at the laboratories of the national advisory committee for aeronautics here, it has been established that air, up to a few years ago regarded as an incompressible medium insofar as the airplane was concerned, actually could be pushed to a certain point and no further.

VICAR GENERAL IN WAR TO CELEBRATE

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Vicar General of United States army chaplains during the world war, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William M. Foley of Chicago, celebrates the 50th anniversary of his ordination as a priest tomorrow.

The actual date of his entry into priesthood was June 4, but a solemn jubilee mass was scheduled at St. Ambrose church, his home parish, Sunday.

Msgr. Foley, who in his first nine years as a priest, established six mission churches in the city, merited the title "founder of parishes." It was under his leadership that St. Ambrose church, acclaimed by many the most beautiful in the city, was erected.

With the entrance of the United States into the world war, Father Foley's energy turned to new fields. At the urging of Patrick Cardinal Hayes, he was appointed vicar general of army chaplains with the rank of captain. It was in appreciation of his services that Cardinal Hayes invested him with the title of Right Reverend Monsignor.

His services as vicar general endeared him to all Catholic church war workers and thousands of members of the A. E. F.

Msgr. Foley was born in Chicago November 11, 1863, and was educated in church parochial schools. In 1882, he entered our Lady of the Angels Seminary, Niagara Falls, N. Y., and was ordained by the Most Rev. Archbishop P. A. Feehan at Holy Name Cathedral.

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF THIS "ARTIFICIAL GILL," DOCTOR? YOU MUST HAVE A REASON —

YES—THERE IS A REASON—AND I'LL TELL YOU ABOUT IT—

A CERTAIN U.S. COASTWISE LINER SANK OFF THE COAST OF FLORIDA, AND IN THE SAFE WERE SOME PLANS OF OUR COAST DEFENSE — DIVERS HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO REACH HER WITH THE CONVENTIONAL SUITS, SO THE GOVERNMENT ASKED ME TO UNDERTAKE THE JOB —

OH GEE! COULD WE GO WITH YOU?

I KNEW YOU TWO WOULD WANT TO GO, SO I HAD 3 OF THE NEW HELMETS MADE —

WELL, YOU WERE SURE RIGHT ABOUT THAT — WHEN DO WE START?

WE START TOMORROW—THE WHOLE EQUIPMENT IS ON THE SHIP NOW — BUT BEFORE WE START I MUST TELL YOU THERE IS AN ELEMENT OF DANGER—A CERTAIN FOREIGN POWER IS ALSO AFTER THOSE COAST DEFENSE PLANS —

WHEAT PRICES IN

A SHARP DECLINE

By JOHN F. BOUGHMAN
Associated Press Market Editor

CHICAGO, June 5.—Violent downward plunges of wheat took prices down today 4½ cents a bushel in some cases.

Decided improvement of 1937 wheat crop prospects in the United States appeared to be the principal underlying factor.

An unexpected drop in Liverpool quotations did much to start today's selling stampede. With unofficial predictions current that the domestic winter wheat yield would approximate 700,000,000 bushels, an amount 500,000 bushels more than recently forecast.

When prices reached the lowest level touched in the last six months, about 23 cents a bushel under the season's peak made early in April.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were around the day's bottom figures, 2 to 4½ cents below yesterday's finish.

July 1937 to $1.06½, Sept. 1937 to $1.07½, Dec. 1937 to $1.09½, corn 1½ to 2½ cents off, July 1937 to $1.10½, Sept. 1937 to $1.06½, Dec. 1937 to $1.07½, oats 1½ to 2½ cents down, July 1937 to $1.06½, Sept. 1937 to $1.07½, Dec. 1937 to $1.08½.

The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 12 cents lower.

In addition to many holders discouraged over apparent unlikelihood of what price upturns in the immediate future, numerous speculative sellers added to the burden on the market. As a result, stop-loss orders in profusion were automatically forced to be executed, and gave momentum to the downward sweep of values.

July wheat suffered the sharpest tumble in Chicago today, falling to $1.06½ from $1.11 at yesterday's close.

Corn, oats and rye values gave way.

STOCKS STEADY IN

A NERVOUS MARKET

NEW YORK, June 5.—(AP)—Quiet demand for farm implement shares and specialties helped to keep today's stock market on balance.

But profit selling made its appearance after an early forward tide and extreme advances were pared or cancelled in many instances. Small fractional gains were in the majority at the finish.

The gold problem continued to hold the attention of Wall Street, but yesterday's assurance of the President regarding maintenance of the price of the yellow metal seemed to have brought both speculative and investment sentiment to some extent.

At the same time stock traders showed little inclination to resume the buying move which swept the list upward late Friday.

It was the slowest Saturday session.
